Suez Issue Tense

U.S., France Britain Meet

By ARTHUR GAVSHON
LONDON (AP) — British, French and U. S. policymakers discussed without decision Sunday night a course to free the Suez Canal from sole control of Egypt. The British and French were reported pressing for strong countermeasures.

Spokesmen of the big three western powers issued this statement after a five hour session broken only for dinner.

"The meeting was in agreement about the gravity of the situation and the need for preserving the use of the canal in the interests of all maritime nations as an international waterway, in accordance with the terms of the Convention of 1888."

No Decision
But the spokesmen emphasized that no firm decision had been taken so far.

While they were meeting, the Egyptian embassies in London and Washington issued a statement assuring that Egypt intends to keep the canal open to all ships under nationalization.

The statement issued here blamed the United States and Britain for forcing Egypt's president Gamal Abdel Nasser to take over the canal by withdrawing their offers to help finance the Aswan Dam project.

Egypt has publicly recognized the validity of the Treaty of 1888 that guarantees freedom of travel through the canal.

Checks Problem
The delegates discussed at length implications of an Egyptian announcement that ships using the canal will not be allowed to pay their tolls in checks drawn on British banks. The Egyptian announcement said sterling cash payments would be accepted.

This was in retaliation against the British freeze on Egyptian assets in this country proclaimed and followed by a similar French action Sunday. Spokesmen said the delegates agreed that Egypt's method of hitting back amounted to limitation on the free use of the canal.

The delegates assigned several expert subcommittees to coordinate the view of the three powers on legal, financial, military and shipping problems arising out of the dispute.

Robert Murphy, American Undersecretary of State, was reported to have fired dozens of questions at British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau.

According to conference officials, the two foreign ministers had pressed for adoption of firm and concerted allied countermeasures.

Dulles Condemns Move
The three-power talks got underway as U.S. Secretary of State Dulles in Washington, returning from South America, condemned Nasser's nationalization of the canal as striking a "grievous blow at international confidence."

The statement bolstered previous reports from Washington that the United States is desirous of putting up a united front with Britain and France on the Middle East issue.

Stassen Resumes 'Dump Nixon' Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold E. Stassen resumed his "dump Nixon" campaign Sunday and said he believes the name of Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts will be placed in nomination for the second spot on the Republican ticket at the San Francisco convention.

Stassen said he had no plans to arrange the nomination of Herter, but he was certain it would come about because "regardless of everything said about me in the past week, the convention is now open."

He said he didn't believe that President Eisenhower had yet "reached a final conclusion" on whom his running mate will be.

Tossed Bomb
Stassen, who is Eisenhower's disarmament assistant, tossed a bomb into the political picture last Monday when he suggested that an Eisenhower-Herter ticket would attract six per cent more voters than an Eisenhower-Nixon slate.

Republican leaders in and out of Congress have been coming out since with statements supporting Nixon for renomination and Stassen has been getting everything from mild rebukes to invitations to leave the Republican ranks.

Herter himself has agreed to place Nixon's name in nomination at San Francisco.

Interviewed on a television show Stassen said:

"The President also believes in an open convention. ... He will wait until all the factors are in."

Gives Poll Results
Stassen released what he said are the results of a poll taken July 10, showing that 54 per cent of those asked answered "no" to the question, "Would you like to see Nixon have another term as vice president?"

The percentage in the Far West ran 68.7 to 30.2 per cent against Nixon, Stassen said, with 1.1 per cent undecided.

Stassen did not say how many persons were asked their views in the poll conducted by The Wage-Earner Forum, sponsored by McFadden Publications.

Another Poll
Stassen said "the strong and sincere group of Republicans" who have joined his study of Nixon's value to the GOP ticket, are sponsoring another poll on the issue.

Asked about the pledge of 180 of 202 Republican House members, Stassen said, "What does it mean? A secret ballot would mean much more. The party itself should take a secret poll, and ask the House members and senators who they would rather have, Herter or Nixon."

Large Crowd Sees Atkinson Hay Days

ATKINSON, Neb. (AP) — An old settlers' picnic and rodeo events highlighted activity Sunday at the annual Atkinson Hay Days celebration.

The three-day event got underway Saturday night with preliminary rodeo events before a near-capacity crowd in the grandstand, which seats 3,000.

A kids' parade is on the Monday morning program, followed by a free barbecue.

Texas Oil Tank 'Farm' Explodes

32 HURT

DUMAS, Tex. (AP) — Four huge petroleum tanks exploded Sunday bathing 19 men in a super-hot wall of flame and killing them in their tracks.

Thirty-two others were hospitalized with burns. Some of them were horribly seared.

The towering orange explosion fireball was sighted in Amarillo, 40 miles away.

Spectators Watch

A hundred or more spectators watched, terrified, as lifetime friends and kin stumbled moaning and crying from the smoke and flame on a tank farm of the Shamrock Oil and Gas Corp.

"The fiery blast snuffed out their lives and they crumpled in their tracks," said Bill Lask, news editor of the Moore County News, in describing how the 18 or more died. He was at the site to cover the fire.

The fire-blast was hot beyond belief, survivors said.

RR Bridge Burns

A workman protected in a shack 300 yards from the first explosion was scorched. A railroad bridge a quarter of a mile away was burned completely.

Victims mainly were oil workers and volunteer firemen.

Some of the bodies were so hot long after the explosion that they set fire to blankets used to wrap them.

A boy about 11, wearing no shirt stumbled from the heat with his naked back burning fiercely.

Bob Hamilton, Moore County News reporter, was a quarter-mile from the explosion and the heat set his hair blazing.

Just Charcoal

Most of the dead were taken to the National Guard Armory, where townspeople attempted to identify bodies that were reduced to charcoal.

Bob Bower, company information official, said that every body at the scene had been accounted for and there were no more bodies in the explosion area.

This Texas Panhandle town of 8,200 was not geared for a disaster this large. But it's a country town, and everybody helps everybody else, and less than four hours after the disaster, all the 32 burned had been taken care of in the previously quiet and calm 40-bed brick Moore County Memorial Hospital.

Earlier, the burned sat in corridors or anywhere else they could find a place—some moaning and crying but otherwise quiet—while the limited staff of doctors and nurses cared for them. For a time, an injection of morphine was all that could be done.

But the small staff soon was swelled by aid from nearby towns.

The explosion and fire was on the tank farm of the 75-million-dollar McKee plant of the Shamrock Oil and Gas Corp. with headquarters in Amarillo, Tex. It adjoins the firm's McKee refinery, which was not damaged.

The plant covers several hundred acres eight miles northeast of Dumas.

Pentane Tank

The tank that caused the holocaust was No. 199, a 15,000-barrel mixing arrangement filled with highly explosive pentane used in gasoline refining.

The explosion set off a chain of blasts and fires in surrounding tanks, some used for crude oil storage.

Sunday night, plant officials feared more tanks would go up if the wind changed direction. Other tanks were emptied back into pipelines.

A number of railroad tank cars filled with gasoline were inside the plant and couldn't be moved because of damaged tracks.

A high wind from the south was blowing the flames from two large tanks that were still burning away from the big field of other tanks.

Shift Dangerous
Amarillo Fire Chief Roy Hill said if the winds continue the tanks would burn out but that a shift of the wind to the north could create a dangerous situation.

Firemen with equipment from other towns and Amarillo Air Force Base were standing by. Hill said they wouldn't go into action unless the wind shifted. He said the firemen might be able to put out the fires in the tanks but he didn't believe personnel and equipment should be risked at this point.

Bower said damage to the plant was estimated at a half million dollars.

The fire started as a small one in No. 199. There had been some safety valve trouble earlier. It didn't look too bad—flames were shooting up 50 feet, but that isn't unusual in this type of fire.

19 OREGON CLIMBERS IN MISHAP

PORTLAND, Ore. (INS) — Nineteen young climbers, members of a youth hostel group from the eastern states, were plunged into a 2,000 foot crevasse on Oregon's Mt. Hood Sunday evening and first reports said that four were killed.

Rescue teams converged on the scene, at the 9,000-foot level near Crater Rock, from Portland, Ore., Longview, Wash., and Hood River, Ore., and plasma and other medical supplies were being parachuted from planes from McChord Air Force Base at Tacoma. Helicopters could not reach the area because of unfavorable air currents.

Early reports said that two members of the climbing party, youths unfamiliar with the mountain, lost their footing, taking the other 17 into the crevasse with them.

Storms Forecast For State Monday

Scattered thunderstorms were forecast for most of Nebraska Monday.

Warmer temperatures were to cover the state Monday with highs of near 90 in the northeast to the upper 90's in the southwest portion of the state.

Rainfall late Sunday night brought .53 inch precipitation at Chadron and thunderstorms were reported in the area.

A small tornado Saturday destroyed a large cattle barn on the Senn Waddell farm three miles northeast of Nehawka. The twister was followed by 1.50 inches of rain.

The Dorchester and Fairmont areas had about .50 of an inch of rain Saturday.

Lincoln and Omaha each reported a trace of rain early Sunday.

LAST OF 'BOYS IN BLUE' STILL CRITICALLY ILL

DULUTH, Minn. (INS) — Albert Woolson, the last Union survivor of the Civil War, was fighting Sunday what physicians described as "possibly his final battle."

The 109-year-old veteran, who has been in a Duluth's hospital since last Memorial Day, remained in critical condition under an oxygen tent.

Woolson is being treated for lung congestion. His condition became more serious and he was placed in the oxygen tent.

A chain-smoking story-teller who charmed generations of Duluth adults and youngsters with his tales of early America, Woolson joined the Grand Army of the Republic when he was 17, serving as a drummer boy in a contingent of Minnesota volunteers.

Cooler Temps Help Corn, But Two-Inch Rain Badly Needed

Cooler weekend temperatures probably stopped burning of Lancaster County's corn crop, according to County Agent Cyril Bish. But he said he expects more damage this week if there is no rain.

He termed the county situation critical, and said a two-inch rain is badly needed. Bish estimated only 60 per cent of the normal county corn crop could be realized if average rainfall is received from now on.

Bish said he expected word on Lancaster County's request for designation as a drought disaster area by Federal authorities early this week.

Webster, Phelps and Pawnee are the latest counties to request drought disaster designation. This brings to 44 the number of Nebraska counties seeking drought disaster aid.

One-hundred degree temperatures last week caused farmers throughout the state to flock to ASC offices to sign up for the soil bank. Lancaster County ASC office manager Richard Leffordink estimated more than 1,400 acre reserve agreements involving more than 20,000 acres have been entered into by county farmers.

R. M. Webb, state ASC official, said Sunday final figures on the number of farmers who signed up for the soil bank in Nebraska won't be tabulated until mid-week. But he estimated more than 50,000 acre reserve agreements involving payments of $20 million have been executed.

Webb said signups ran as high as 80 to 90 per cent in the eastern half of the state to lower percentages in the western sections. Deadline for signing up for the soil bank was last Friday.

Council To Name Martin Mayor Today

City Councilman Bennett S. (Abe) Martin will become the new mayor of Lincoln through one of the first acts of the City Council Monday afternoon.

Monday's meeting of the Council will open with approval of claims to be signed by outgoing Mayor Clark Jeary. The Council will then accept the resignations of Jeary and Martin.

Resolutions will then be presented, appointing Martin as mayor and naming Ray Osborn, former city welfare and safety director, to the vacant spot on the Council.

Following the appointment of those officers, the Council will resume its regular meeting.

Grace, Prince Leave For U.S. On Sept. 20

PARIS (INS) — Monaco officials announced Sunday that Prince Rainier and Princess Grace will leave for the United States Sept. 20.

The prince and his movie star bride will sail aboard the liner United States and probably will remain in the U.S. about two months.

Prior to coming to the U.S., the couple will cruise the Mediterranean in the royal yacht for two weeks.

'I've Never Been So Hot'—Hurt Newsman

Editor's Note: Bob Hamilton, reporter-photographer of the Moore County News, was taking pictures of the fire from about 200 yards away when the first explosion occurred at the Shamrock-McKee refinery and tank farm. He is now hospitalized with burns on the back, neck and head, while helping carry victims from the scene. He lost his camera in the confusion. Hamilton gave this eyewitness account for the Associated Press by phone from the Moore County Memorial Hospital in Dumas.

By BOB HAMILTON
DUMAS, Tex. (AP) — I was a quarter of a mile away when the tanks on the McKee-Shamrock oil refinery exploded but it felt like someone was burning my face with a blowtorch. I have never been that hot in my life.

I ran across the highway and there was a man in front of me. His hair was smoldering. My own hair was on fire. I kept brushing the back of my head to put out the fire.

Everybody around me was running into a plowed field to get farther away from that inferno. One was a boy about 11. He didn't have a shirt on and his back was burning. He was in terrific pain and almost hysterical.

A man walked up to me. He was in a severe state of shock. He kept mumbling that an oil well blew up. I saw the skin peeling off his back.

When I first got to Moore County Memorial Hospital, all that could be heard were low moans and cries. Men were lying on the floor. All had burns. The more seriously burned were taken to rooms. Everything was very orderly but you couldn't get away from the moans and cries and the smell of burned flesh.

Terrific Heat
The original fire that engulfed the tank was one of the hottest I had ever experienced but the explosion that followed was even worse.

When we first got the report of the fire, I went to the plant and entered the guarded area against the advice of the sheriff and the plant guards.

One tank was completely engulfed in brilliant orange flame. Three fire trucks with complete crews were near the tank on both sides. One crew was attempting to cool nearby tanks with water.

One of the firemen attempted to get close enough to the burning tanks to spray foam on it. But the flames were so intense they had to retreat.

Face In Oven
I was standing about 200 yards from the tank, and took pictures but it was too hot to talk to people. It felt as though my face was against an open oven.

The firemen spraying foam retreated but they kept cooling other tanks. But then it got so hot they couldn't even spray the other tanks.

When the burning tank exploded I ran. Everybody ran. I was at least a quarter of a mile away when I tried to take another picture. But I couldn't. It was too hot. It felt as if someone was burning my face with a blowtorch.

McKeon To Take Stand In Own Defense

By ARTHUR EVERETT
PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (AP) — S.Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon's lawyer said Sunday the former drill instructor will testify in his own defense "early in our case."

Attorney Emile Zola Berman told a reporter he will open his case Monday with testimony from T.Sgt. Elwyn Scarborough, who shared drinks with McKeon a few hours before the defendant marched Platoon 71 into Ribbon Creek last April 8. Six young recruits died on the night march and McKeon is undergoing court-martial for their deaths.

Berman said he will try to establish through Scarborough that McKeon did not habitually keep liquor in his barracks.

Early In Week
McKeon, himself, is to take the witness stand early in the week.

Thus far, McKeon's own story of the tragedy has come only through a statement he made to a marine investigator immediately after his arrest. The prosecution introduced it before closing its case last week. The defense says the statement is not complete.

Berman returned to this base in midafternoon after a trip out of town. He would not disclose the mission that led him to seek the weekend recess in the court-martial.

But he said:

"I have had an opportunity over this weekend to reexamine the prosecution case and what necessities it imposes on us. On the major issues, their case is so weak and confusing that I believe we will be in a position to conclude our case with more clarity than we had assumed."

He would not guess whether he might compress the defense case into one week. But he indicated it wouldn't run much longer than a week or two.

Earlier, Maj. Charles B. Sevier, the prosecutor, had said he prepared his case on a firm assumption that the 31-year-old McKeon would be a witness in his own defense.

McKeon is accused of manslaughter, oppression of recruits and drinking while on duty. The tall, cropped-haired sergeant faces the maximum of a dishonorable discharge and up to six years in prison if convicted.

Nipped, But Not Drunk
In medical testimony last week, McKeon was absolved of any implication he was drunk. McKeon has admitted nipping three or four times on a vodka bottle the afternoon before the march, but he passed a sobriety test after the tragedy.

At least two major premises remain to be cemented by the defense.

Berman says night marches were common practice and has called 18 ex-Marines to testify to their experiences on Parris Island between 1950 and 1954.

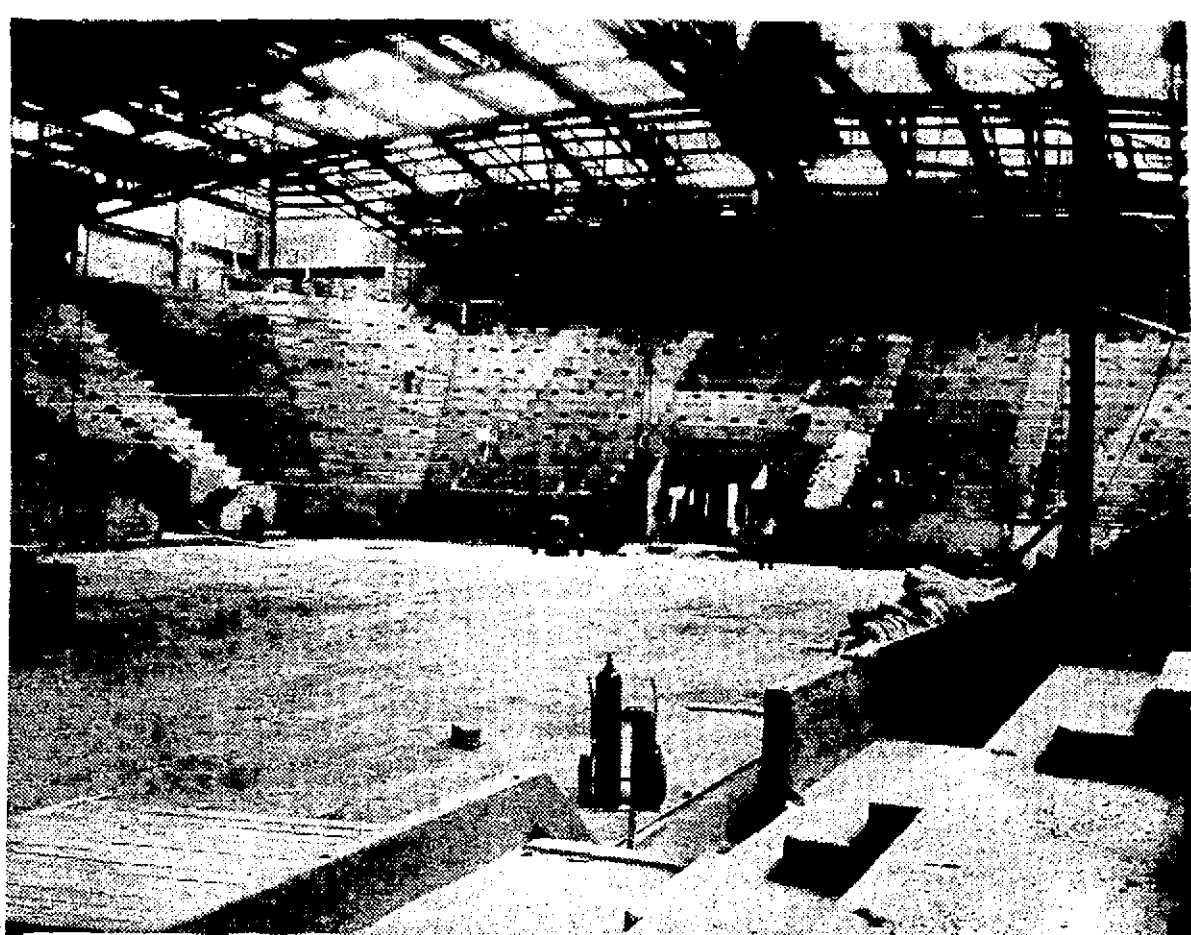

Another main facet of Berman's defense, as brought out during his cross-examination of prosecution witnesses, is his contention that the dead Marines would be alive today if they had followed McKeon. Some testimony has indicated that the recruits wandered into deep water through their own recklessness.

Okinawans Protest U.S. Land Policy
TOKYO (INS)—The Kyodo News Service, in a dispatch from Okinawa's capital city of Naha, reported that a tense four-hour rally was held in the city in protest against the U. S. military land policy.

The news service said that some 150,000 Okinawans joined the rally which called for the resignation of Fuhuei Higa, head of the Okinawa government, and Mayor Joo Toma of Naha City and the sending to Japan of three leaders of the social mass party.

Fast Police Work Kills The 'Bottle'
AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Police roped off the building of a British information center here when someone found a package suspected of containing a bomb.

Police removed the package, drew their pistols and fired at it. Jets of water spouted out of the bullet holes. The "bomb" was an insulated jug filled with ice water.

Bones In Colorado May Be Those Of Missing Nebraskan

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Sheriff's officers checked Sunday the possibility that bones found in a gravel pit near Kokomo, Colo., may be those of a missing Nebraskan man.

Sheriff Art Everson said officers would try to determine if the bones were those of Leo B. Goodhart, 44, wealthy Nebraska rancher, who was the subject of a widespread hunt. Goodhart lived near Humboldt, Neb.

Everson said Goodhart was last reported seen alive in his Denver hotel room Feb. 19, 1954. At that time he was wearing a brown wool suit, a light brown gabardine topcoat and a brown hat.

Among the bones found buried under three feet of gravel near Kokomo were brown pieces of material, some of which appeared to be wool and a lighter fabric.

The bones were brought to Denver in a burlap bag and will be examined by pathologists Monday to try to determine the time of death and the approximate size of the man and other identifying features.

Second Omahan Dies As Result Of Fort Dodge Crash

FORT DODGE, Ia. (AP)—A 32-year-old Omaha man, Charles Fuller, died at a Fort Dodge hospital Sunday evening of injuries suffered in a two-car crash Saturday in which a passenger in his car was killed.

Fuller was the driver of a car which went out of control and skidded into the path of an oncoming car on Highway 20 about 13 miles west of Fort Dodge.

Mrs. Beatrice Daniels of Omaha, a passenger in Fuller's car, was killed in the crash. The driver of the other car, Miss Hazel Stephenson of Rockwell City, was injured.

Boat Spills Owner, Circles, Strikes Him, He Drowns

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—While a witness stood helplessly by, watching through a pair of field glasses, a Kansas City man was jarred from and then run over by his motorboat and drowned Sunday.

Police said Harold Saltzman was motorboating in the river just east of here. The motor quit, they said, and Saltzman stood up to start it and was flipped out when the boat jerked forward.

M. E. Singleton, of Kansas City, Kan., told police he happened to be watching the boat at the time and saw Saltzman, 30, swimming after he fell overboard. Singleton said the boat, apparently out of control, circled around, missing Saltzman three or four times before it apparently ran over him.

Damage $100,000 In Fremont Blaze

LINCOLN STAR SPECIAL
FREMONT, Neb. — Fire Chief John Mordhorst Sunday estimated $100,000 damage resulted from a fire at the Nick Neff Tire and Motor Co. here.

The early-morning fire Saturday destroyed the household goods and appliances section of the store. The adjoining Neff service station and garage were not damaged.

Firemen fought the blaze for nearly three hours. Mordhorst said wiring was apparently the cause and added that it definitely wasn't arson.

He said the loss was covered by insurance.

Use Of Water Is Still High; Reservoir Low

The city's main water reservoir was less than half-full early Monday morning after another day of heavy water usage in Lincoln.

Officials said the level stood at 6 1/2 feet (the reservoir level when full is some 15 feet) but that the reservoir was expected to fill rapidly during the early morning hours when water usage is down.

"We're in pretty good shape," an official reported, and "there is no danger of shortage at this time."

Officials said more than 48,700,000 gallons of water were used Saturday. Figures were not available early Monday morning for Sunday's usage.

Friday's consumption was a little more than 48 million gallons and 47,319,000 were used Thursday. The daily pumping capacity is 46.4 million gallons.

The increased demand has caused some water to be used from storage reservoirs, but officials said Sunday's break in the heat will prevent the storage from dropping to a dangerous level at this time.

North Bend Man Heads Volunteer Fire Association

WAUSA, Neb. (AP)—Leonard Dodge of North Bend was elected president of the Northeast Nebraska Volunteer Fire Assn. Sunday at a one-day convention attended by more than 100 persons.

Dodge succeeds Royal Swanson of Wausa.

Other new officers are Jack Kruger of North Bend, vice president, and Rudolph Verba of Schuyler, secretary-treasurer.

The 1957 convention was awarded to North Bend.

Lyle Plog, chairman of the Wausa Fire Department, said demonstrations of various fire fighting techniques highlighted the day's events. Assisting the Wausa department in the demonstrations were Bloomfield and Osmond firemen.

Speakers at the convention included State Fire Marshal E. C. Iverson and two fire instructors in the Department of Vocational Education, William A. Berens and Bruce Wilson.

4-H Conservation Day Set For July 31

The annual Lancaster County 4-H Conservation Field Day is set for Tuesday, July 31. The 4-H conservation club members will demonstrate soil conservation practices on the Ed Ten Hulzen farm located 2 miles east and one half mile north of Firth, Nebraska.

The field demonstration this year will stress waterway shaping and leveling. Each 4-H club will be assigned a drainage way in which they will construct a grass waterway.

Besides the waterway demonstration, the individual 4-H conservation club members will participate in a terrace judging contest.

The field day will close with refreshments served by the Lincoln Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Lancaster Soil Conservation District.

Tunisian Guerrilla Hanged In Secret

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Tahib Zallag, a guerrilla leader who refused to lay down his arms when Tunisia got recognition of its sovereignty from France, has been hanged in secret.

Many Tunisian nationalists voiced anger when they learned of the hanging, for they regarded him as a patriot.

B52s Are Used To Test U.S. Air Defenses

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force is using B52s to test out defenses against the comparable Bison bombers which Russia would use in an attack on North America.

The big, jet-powered B52s are being sent out with "raiding forces" which make unannounced, stabbing probes of the continental aircraft warning and defense system.

They fly from directions and at altitudes and speeds which the new and powerful Russian Bisons could be expected to choose in transpolar and transoceanic strikes at U. S. and Canadian cities.

Increasing numbers of the B52 Stratofortresses are being assigned to these missions as the number of deliveries to operating units of the Strategic Air Command expands.

200-300 In Tests
As many as 200 or 300 strategic bombers—the B52s, the medium B47s and the older B36s—are put into the air to make mock attacks, simultaneously and from different quarters. They are pitted against the warning networks and interceptor and aircraft defenses of the Continental Air Defense Command.

The B52 has a range of more than 6,000 miles, without aerial refueling. Its speed is over 650 miles per hour and it can cruise at an altitude in excess of 50,000 feet. The Stratofortress can carry hydrogen bombs.

The Air Force says the bison is generally comparable with the B52. It estimates that the Soviet Bison, carrying a 10,000-pound bomb, could reach seven-eighths of area in the United States with only one aerial refueling, and with two refuelings could hit any target in the United States.

Six Found Dead In Alabama Auto

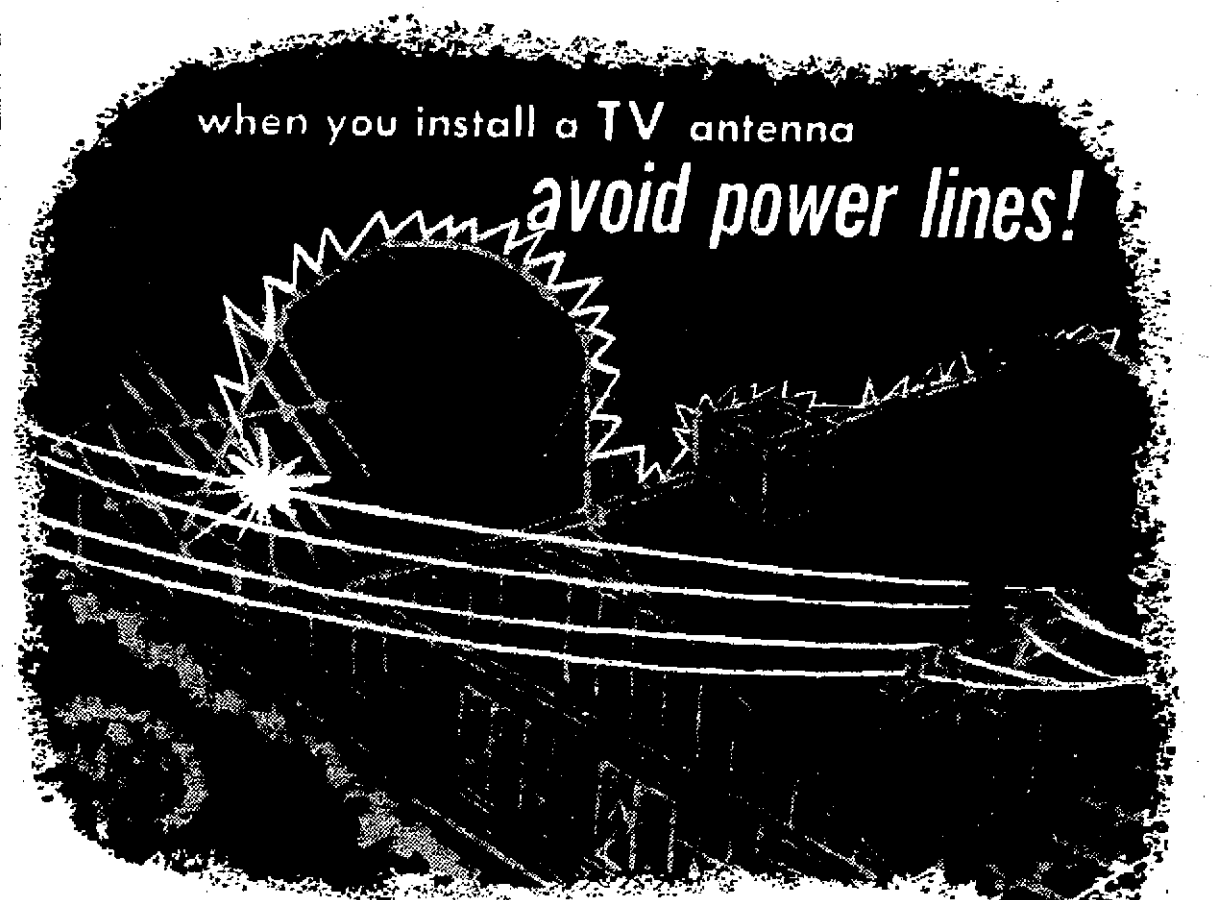

THOMASVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Six persons, including an infant, were killed and a small child was injured when a speeding car swerved off the highway and smashed into a creek bed Sunday.

The dead and injured, all from Thomasville, apparently were pinned in the wreckage about 7 1/2 hours.

Highway patrolman James Johnson said the wreck occurred about 3 a.m. but was not discovered until 10:30 a.m. He said all of the victims were Negroes.

A demonstration on how to enlarge a pattern by Janet Steinmeyer. The Skirt and Blouse group discussed their skirts and blouses; and the Lets Sew group discussed their needle cases.

The Ghost Riders 4-H club met at the home of John Huengerger. There was a demonstration on grooming the horse. Members made plans for the county and state fair.

TV antennas and power lines don't mix...carelessness in selecting a location for an outside TV antenna is inviting danger in the form of fire or serious bodily injury should the TV mast or guy wires fall on a nearby power line.

Consumers Public Power District, Nebraska's dependable and progressive low-cost electric service, brings this special safety message to you because of the extensive use of outside TV antennas and their proximity to power lines.

Electricity, enough to kill, can flow through any metal or other conducting material that touches high-voltage lines. It can even flow through wood. Should a tall, top-heavy TV antenna fall across a power line, the mast and guide wires become energized and are then potential killers and conductors of fire.

If you have a new house and are about to set up an outside TV antenna, make sure that should it ever topple that it would not fall across power lines. If you have a TV antenna atop your house now and you have a question relative to its nearness to a power line, please call your power office for advice.

in case of accident...
If an accident does happen, never touch a person or equipment in contact with a power line. A dry board or dry rope may be used to pull anyone free from contact. Give first aid and call a doctor at once. Call the power office right away—and tell them what happened and where it happened.

FREMONT, Neb. — Fire Chief John Mordhorst Sunday estimated $100,000 damage resulted from a fire at the Nick Neff Tire and Motor Co. here.

The early-morning fire Saturday destroyed the household goods and appliances section of the store. The adjoining Neff service station and garage were not damaged.

Firemen fought the blaze for nearly three hours. Mordhorst said wiring was apparently the cause and added that it definitely wasn't arson.

He said the loss was covered by insurance.

Use Of Water Is Still High; Reservoir Low

The city's main water reservoir was less than half-full early Monday morning after another day of heavy water usage in Lincoln.

Officials said the level stood at 6 1/2 feet (the reservoir level when full is some 15 feet) but that the reservoir was expected to fill rapidly during the early morning hours when water usage is down.

"We're in pretty good shape," an official reported, and "there is no danger of shortage at this time."

Officials said more than 48,700,000 gallons of water were used Saturday. Figures were not available early Monday morning for Sunday's usage.

Friday's consumption was a little more than 48 million gallons and 47,319,000 were used Thursday.

The daily pumping capacity is 46-47 million gallons.

The increased demand has caused some water to be used from storage reservoirs, but officials said Sunday's break in the heat will prevent the storage from dropping to a dangerous level at this time.

North Bend Man Heads Volunteer Fire Association

WAUSA, Neb. (AP)—Leonard Dodge of North Bend was elected president of the Northeast Nebraska Volunteer Fire Assn. Sunday at a one-day convention attended by more than 100 persons.

Dodge succeeds Royal Swanson of Wausa.

Other new officers are Jack Kruger of North Bend, vice president, and Rudolph Verba of Schuyler, secretary-treasurer.

The 1957 convention was awarded to North Bend.

Lyle Plog, chairman of the Wausa Fire Department, said demonstrations of various fire fighting techniques highlighted the day's events. Assisting the Wausa department in the demonstrations were Bloomfield and Osmond firemen.

Speakers at the convention included State Fire Marshal E. C. Iverson and two fire instructors in the Department of Vocational Education, William A. Berens and Bruce Wilson.

4-H Conservation Day Set For July 31

The annual Lancaster County 4-H Conservation Field Day is set for Tuesday, July 31. The 4-H conservation club members will demonstrate soil conservation practices on the Ed Ten Hulzen farm located 2 miles east and one half mile north of Firth, Nebraska.

The field demonstration this year will stress waterway shaping and leveling. Each 4-H club will be assigned a drainage way in which they will construct a grass waterway.

Besides the waterway demonstration, the individual 4-H conservation club members will participate in a terrace judging contest.

The field day will close with refreshments served by the Lincoln Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Lancaster Soil Conservation District.

The Walton Wrens met at the home of Linda and Darleen Payne. Club members judged sea m.s. Rosemary Overman demonstrated how to sew on a button. The girls worked on their aprons and skirts.

The Rock Creek Gingersnaps met at the home of Janet Peterson. Each girl reported on how much she had accomplished in completing her projects. After discussing the main points to consider when judging clothing, several dresses were judged. A demonstration was given by Janet Peterson on how to make crocheted belt loops.

The Jolly Janes 4-H Club met at the home of Cathy Dibble. The meeting was opened by saying the 4-H pledge. The club decided to have a picnic in Lincoln and then attend the Share the Fun Contest. The Work and Play group brought their work or play outfits finished. The Lets Help Mother and Dad group brought their bulletin boards completed.

The Fancy Cooks 4-H club met recently. Mrs. Wittmuss was a guest and gave some helpful suggestions. Members demonstrated nut bread, ambrosia, eggnog and lemonade. Achievement Day for the club is August 15.

The Do It Well club met at the home of Jean and Joyce Hamilton. Joyce Hamilton gave a demonstration on how to use the basic seven folds, and a color scheme in meal planning.

The Rokeby Lassies met at the home of Carol Reddish. A demonstration was given by Donna Parriss on pressing and ironing. The leader, Mrs. Merrill Loos demonstrated how to put in a facing.

The Uni-Jollyetts met at the home of the leader, Mrs. W. E. Mays. The girls in the Beginning Baking project made biscuits which were served at the 11 a.m. lunch. In the Skirt and Blouse project, the leader showed the girls how to make a collar and how to put it on a blouse.

The Needle Threaders held two morning meetings recently at the Ted Dappen and Guy Matson homes. Demonstrations were: How to make darts—Susan Matson; Correct Posture—Sandra Schick; Your skin—Judy Barkhurst and Lois Dappen; Your hands and Nails—Susan Matson and Le Ann Weble-moe.

The Firth Handy Maids met at the home of Joyce and Carmen Lowe for their Achievement Day; the program was given at the Firth School building where the members had their exhibits on display. The mothers were guests, and Miss Frances Runty, Home Extension agent was a guest.

The Rokeby Lassies held their meeting at the home of Janice Siemans. All members were present. Mrs. Loos the leader, helped the members cut out their blouses. Demonstrations were given by Diane Parriss on finishing seams, and Harriet Myers gave one on how stay stitching is used. Members judged blouse darts. Shirley Hoy and Twila Fiedler led in entertainment.

B52s Are Used To Test U.S. Air Defenses

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force is using B52s to test out defenses against the comparable Bison bombers which Russia would use in an attack on North America.

The big, jet-powered B52s are being sent out with "raiding forces" which make unannounced, stabbing probes of the continental aircraft warning and defense system.

They fly from directions and at altitudes and speeds which the new and powerful Russian Bisons could be expected to choose in transpolar and transoceanic strikes at U. S. and Canadian cities.

Increasing numbers of the B52 Stratofortresses are being assigned to these missions as the number of deliveries to operating units of the Strategic Air Command expands.

200-300 In Tests

As many as 200 or 300 strategic bombers—the B52s, the medium B47s and the older B36s—are put into the air to make mock attacks, simultaneously and from different quarters. They are pitted against the warning networks and interceptor and aircraft defenses of the Continental Air Defense Command.

The B52 has a range of more than 6,000 miles, without aerial refueling. Its speed is over 650 miles per hour and it can cruise at an altitude in excess of 50,000 feet. The Stratofortress can carry hydrogen bombs.

The Air Force says the bison is generally comparable with the B52. It estimates that the Soviet Bison, carrying a 10,000-pound bomb, could reach seven-eighths of area in the United States with only one aerial refueling, and with two refuelings could hit any target in the United States.

TV antennas and power lines don't mix...carelessness in selecting a location for an outside TV antenna is inviting danger in the form of fire or serious bodily injury should the TV mast or guy wires fall on a nearby power line.

Consumers Public Power District, Nebraska's dependable and progressive low-cost electric service, brings this special safety message to you because of the extensive use of outside TV antennas and their proximity to power lines.

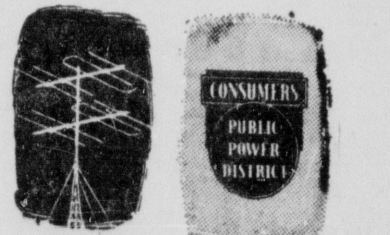

Electricity, enough to kill, can flow through any metal or other conducting material that touches high-voltage lines. It can even flow through wood. Should a tall, top-heavy TV antenna fall across a power line, the mast and guide wires become energized and are then potential killers and conductors of fire.

If you have a new house and are about to set up an outside TV antenna, make sure that should it ever topple that it would not fall across power lines. If you have a TV antenna atop your house now and you have a question relative to its nearness to a power line, please call your power office for advice.

Nebraska's Proposal For Ton-Mile Tax Would Touch Only Trucks Over 10 Tons And Big Buses

By BETTY PERSON
Star Staff Writer

Initiative petitions have been filed with the Secretary of State's office which will place a ton-mile tax proposal on the Nebraska ballot in the November general election.

Under the proposed law, commercial trucks weighing 10 tons or over, and inter-city buses of 28,000 pounds or more, would pay a highway use tax based on weight and distance. The charge on the weight basis would remain constant as the tax would be computed on the weight of the truck licensed to carry. The variable factor would come from the distance the vehicle travels.

The Nebraska proposal calls for a scale ranging from 1.9 cents per mile for a 10-ton truck to 6.1 cents per mile for a 25-ton truck.

One exception under the Nebraska law would be that trucks which are empty substantially half the time, such as petroleum and livestock carriers, would pay a highway use tax at a rate equal to two-thirds of the tax per mile. Thus a 10-ton truck falling in this category would pay about 1.2 cents per mile.

Another provision of the Nebraska proposal is that all Nebraska-licensed trucks would be credited in full for the amount of their license fee before they would start paying the additional ton-mile tax.

Proponents of the measure declare this would allow the average trucker to travel 16,000 to 18,000 miles before the proposed tax would be added.

Opponents of the measure say this would be a relatively small amount since the average trucker travels about 100,000 miles annually.

Same Distribution
The funds derived from the Nebraska ton-mile tax would be distributed to the state Department of Roads and Irrigation and counties and municipalities on the same basis as the state's gasoline tax: 58 per cent to the state and 42 per cent to counties and municipalities. The money would be earmarked for construction of highways, roads, streets and alleys.

The tax would be collected by the Department of Agriculture and Inspection. Truckers would make their own reports and these would be open to an auditor's check.

The Nebraska proposal is sponsored by the Committee for Better Roads Through Fair Taxation. Its Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Beals, Lincoln, estimates the state would receive $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 annually from the tax. His estimate is based on the 1955 registration of trucks and buses licensed to do business in Nebraska.

10 Per Cent Hike
Beals said that on this basis state highway funds would be increased about 10 per cent over monies now received and counties and cities would be hiked approximately one-third. He added this was "an opportune time for the tax to provide money for matching federal funds under the new interstate highway program recently passed by congress."

One of the opponents of the measure, C. Russell Lockwood, Lincoln, Executive Secretary of the Nebraska Petroleum Industries Committee, believes proponents have put too high an estimate on the revenue to be collected. He said his judgment is based on other state's experiences. Lockwood cited the neighboring state of Kansas which collected $3,350,000 on the ton-mile tax. He said it was his belief that Kansas would produce more than Nebraska and thus he estimated this state would receive closer to $3,000,000.

Disagree On Cost
Proponents of the measure say administration costs would take three to four percent of the money collected, whereas opponents believe it would take about 20 percent of the tax to administer the fund.

Referring to the cost of collecting the tax, Lockwood said highway users would have to pay along with the tax cost itself. He estimated approval of the proposal would result in a gas price hike of one-fourth cent per gallon at the pump.

Asked if he believed passage of the measure would result in a major shift of truck traffic from Nebraska, Beals declared, "Absolutely not."

On the other hand, replying to the same question, Lockwood answered, "There undoubtedly will be a shift—how major is something else."

Says Trucks 'Subsidized'

Commenting on the proposal, Beals said it is an attempt to get something from the big transcontinental truck companies which use Nebraska as a bridge to get across the country. He said more than of the big over-the-road trucks are out-of-state vehicles. Beals declared, "We have subsidized trucks long enough. It's time they paid their pro-rated share to the passenger car."

Beals said he anticipates opposition from the truckers, but added he didn't think they would beat the measure.

Backers of the proposal say the ton-mile tax would affect less than 10 per cent of the commercial trucks licensed to do business in Nebraska.

Lockwood termed the proposal "the imposition of an added tax only for the sake of having an added tax. Our needs for additional highway funds are not apparent at this time."

Thinks Will Fail

Lockwood said he believes each member organization of the Nebraska Highway Users Conference will assume the responsibility of informing its membership and the public of the "adverse effect of the imposition of the ton-mile tax in Nebraska."

The petroleum representative said he feels the measure will be rejected by the people and that will certainly convince the legislators that this type of proposal should not be passed.

If the ton-mile tax does meet with voter approval in November, the legislature, under Nebraska law, still could repeal the measure if it chose to do so.

Associated Press—Reporters at the capitol of five states with experience with the ton-mile tax have reported that in those states—Ohio, Idaho, Colorado, Oregon and Kansas—the tax has not resulted in any appreciable change in truck traffic.

Cost 3.10 Per Cent

Administration costs in the five states were reported to run about the same, three to four per cent, although Kansas apportioned 10 per cent, the top reported, for enforcement costs. The state has repealed the ton-mile tax, but is said to be considering re-instituting the measure.

Revenues collected in the five states surveyed varied with the amount of truck traffic and the rate of taxation. Idaho reported income of $1,500,000. Ohio, the largest state reporting, has received about $12,000,000 a year, but expects revenues to increase by about $5,000,000 if court appeals on the law result in decisions favorable to the state. Ohio taxes are based on mileage and number of axles rather than mileage and weight.

Most states reported the proposals had been opposed, sometimes hotly, by trucking associations. But in the case of Oregon, the Public Utilities Commission says truckers generally like the system.

Young Moon-Gazer And His Home-Made Telescope

Newcomer Praises Conditions For Moon-Gazing In Nebraska

YORK, Neb.—A recent addition to Nebraska's population, 15-year-old Don Hagman, is enthusiastic about the moon-gazing facilities of the Cornhusker state.

This young astronomer who recently moved here from Detroit, Mich., says, "I see things now through my telescope that I never saw before... the Milky Way... it was pretty hazy at Detroit."

Don became interested in astronomy three years ago and has since designed a six-inch reflecting telescope and through this instrument has become quite well acquainted with the moon.

Can Name Craters

He said his telescope virtually brings the moon down to eye level and he can name many of the craters as a result of his close study.

Young Hagman describes a telescope as "actually an optical illusion, just like your eye-glasses. There is the objective lens which forms the image... the eyepiece magnifies this image."

There are reflecting and refracting telescopes. A refracting telescope, which means a direct view, costs around $1,000 at retail. "That is perhaps the reason the one I made is a reflecting instrument," Don said.

Less Than $50

The York lad spent less than $50 on his telescope, including $15 for the eyepiece which must be bought commercially.

He used salvage material such as the stand which came from a gum-vending machine, plumbing parts and a lead weight. The telescope will magnify at 24 diameters on low power, but can be set to magnify up to 100.

Not satisfied with the view of a six-inch telescope, Don is now working on an eight-inch instrument to take advantage of Nebraska's clearer view.

This busy lad also is interested in engineering, tennis, swimming, baseball and more recently has developed a hobby of photography, which with astronomy is practically a prerequisite.

'MISS UNIVERSE' ADOPTED IN OMAHA AT AGE OF 3

... By Iowa Pastor, Wife

LOS ANGELES (AP)—From Omaha orphanage to world beauty fame—that's the rise of the recently crowned Miss Universe, Carol Morris of Ottumwa, Iowa.

The 20-year-old brunette said Sunday she was adopted at the age of 3 by the Rev. and Mrs. LaVerne Morris.

"And I have the best parents in the world," Carol said of her foster parents. "I'd never trade them for any in the world."

The Rev. Mr. Morris and his wife said they adopted Carol from the Child Saving Institute in Omaha in 1939 while he was serving as pastor of the Christian Church in Oakland, Iowa.

The Rev. Mr. Morris said he didn't know Carol's real parents, and she added that she doesn't remember anything about them either.

The foster father said Carol has "known almost from the start" that she was adopted. She is the only child the Morris have had.

"I wish you knew how much she means to us," the minister told a reporter in an emotion-filled voice. "No parents could love their children more than we love Carol."

'Abundant' Love

"Love is the one thing she has always known abundantly, and she has always given us her affection."

When Carol won the Miss Universe title in Long Beach July 21, reporters noted the lack of resemblance between her and her parents.

But the Morris talked of Carol as if she had always been theirs, and apparently that's their feeling.

Carol leaves Monday for a series of personal appearances in the East, including a movie premiere in Claverack, N. Y. Then she's due to return to Hollywood to begin learning the ropes as a fledgling actress.

Thirty-One Senators Criticize Lack Of Oil Import Limitation

... As National Defense Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—Thirty-one Senators stated Sunday oil imports are not being restrained within the limits necessary for national defense.

The group, 15 Republicans and 16 Democrats, said the amount of oil imports is exceeding the level set by presidential committee last year. They asked Director of Defense Mobilization Arthur S. Flemming for "assurance" that remedial action will be taken.

They sent a letter to Flemming saying there was an understanding that oil imports would not be permitted to exceed the 1954 relationship to domestic production.

The letter said in part: "It is our understanding that oil imports have continuously exceeded the 1954 ratio to domestic production, and that these excesses have been increasing despite the effort by your office during the past year to obtain a voluntary restraint on these imports through a number of appeals to the importing companies."

"No evidence is available to us that oil imports have been, or are being, restrained within the limits determined to be necessary in the interest of national defense."

They added that Flemming's plan to re-examine the basic standard for determining import levels indicates a further delay in accomplishing such restrictions.

Why Didn't They Telephone First?

Surprise visits are nice—especially on vacations—but it's so much more thoughtful to telephone ahead. Let friends and family know you're on the way.

It's happened to all of us—people drop in unexpectedly and you're in the middle of a household chore or possibly you had plans for the day with others. You're happy to see them but it puts you in an awkward spot sometimes too.

So when you travel just take a moment to let folks know you're coming. They'll really appreciate your courtesy—and maybe do the same for you some day.

P.S. It's inexpensive to call ahead by long distance. For instance, you can call from Lincoln to Denver for 90 cents, or to Kansas City for 55 cents. Station-to-station after 6:00 P.M., plus tax.

They added that Flemming's plan to re-examine the basic standard for determining import levels indicates a further delay in accomplishing such restrictions.

Litchfield Rites Held For Flier

LITCHFIELD, Neb.—Services for Wayne Banker, 30, who died as a result of injuries in a plane crash at Memphis, Tenn., were held at the Christian Church here.

Born at Litchfield, he attended school at Crawford.

He enlisted in the Navy in 1944 and later was recalled for active duty in the Korean conflict.

After his discharge he was employed as a flier at Shreveport, La. He recently had moved to Grunshaw, Miss.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Banker; a sister, Gladys, of Rawlins, Wyo.; brothers, William H. of Chicago and Gerald E. of Denver, and his grandmother, Mrs. Mary McGriff of Litchfield.

or over, and inter-city buses of 28,000 pounds or more, would pay a highway use tax based on weight and distance. The charge on the weight basis would remain constant as the tax would be computed on the weight the truck is licensed to carry. The variable factor would come from the distance the vehicle travels.

The Nebraska proposal calls for a scale ranging from 1.9 cents per mile for a 10-ton truck to 6.1 cents per mile for a 25-ton truck.

One Exception

The one exception under the Nebraska law would be that trucks which are empty substantially half the time, such as petroleum and livestock carriers, would pay a highway use tax at a rate equal to two-thirds of the tax per mile. Thus a 10-ton truck falling in this category would pay about 1.2 cents per mile.

Another provision of the Nebraska proposal is that all Nebraska-licensed trucks would be credited in full for the amount of their license fee before they would start paying the additional ton-mile tax.

Proponents of the measure declare this would allow the average trucker to travel 16,000 to 18,000 miles before the proposed tax would be added.

Opponents of the measure say this would be a relatively small amount since the average trucker travels about 100,000 miles annually.

Same Distribution

The funds derived from the Nebraska ton-mile tax would be distributed to the state Department of Roads and Irrigation and counties and municipalities on the same basis as the state's gasoline tax: 58 per cent to the state and 42 per cent to counties and municipalities. The money would be earmarked for construction of highways, roads, streets and alleys.

The tax would be collected by the Department of Agriculture and Inspection. Truckers would make their own reports and these would be open to an auditor's check.

The Nebraska proposal is sponsored by the Committee for Better Roads Through Fair Taxation. Its Secretary-Treasurer C. E. Beals, Lincoln, estimates the state would receive $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 annually from the tax. His estimate is based on the 1955 registration of trucks and buses licensed to do business in Nebraska.

10 Per Cent Hike

Beals said that on this basis state highway funds would be increased about 10 per cent over monies now received and counties and cities would be hiked approximately one-third. He added this was "an opportune time for the tax to provide money for matching federal funds under the new interstate highway program recently passed by congress."

One of the opponents of the measure, C. Russell Lockwood, Lincoln, Executive Secretary of the Nebraska Petroleum Industries Committee, believes proponents have put too high an estimate on the revenue to be collected. He said his judgment is based on other state's experiences. Lockwood cited the neighboring state of Kansas which collected $3,350,000 on the ton-mile tax. He said it was his belief that Kansas would produce more than Nebraska and thus he estimated this state would receive closer to $3,000,000.

Disagree On Cost

Proponents of the measure say administration costs would take three to four percent of the money collected, whereas opponents believe it would take about 20 percent of the tax to administer the fund.

Referring to the cost of collecting the tax, Lockwood said highway users would have to pay along to the consumer this cost as well as the tax cost itself. He estimated approval of the proposal would result in a gas price hike of one-fourth cent per gallon at the pump.

Asked if he believed passage of the measure would result in a major shift of truck traffic from Nebraska, Beals declared, "Absolutely not."

On the other hand, replying to the same question, Lockwood answered, "There undoubtedly will be a shift—how major is something else."

Says Trucks 'Subsidized'

Commenting on the proposal, Beals said it is an attempt to get something from the big transcontinental truck companies which use Nebraska as a bridge to get across the country. He said more than of the big over-the-road trucks are out-of-state vehicles. Beals declared, "We have subsidized trucks long enough. It's time they paid their pro-rated share to the passenger car."

Beals said he anticipates opposition from the truckers, but added he didn't think they would beat the measure.

Backers of the proposal say the ton-mile tax would affect less than 10 per cent of the commercial trucks licensed to do business in Nebraska.

Lockwood termed the proposal "the imposition of an added tax only for the sake of having an added tax. Our needs for additional highway funds are not apparent at this time."

Thinks Will Fail

Lockwood said he believes each member organization of the Nebraska Highway Users Conference will assume the responsibility of informing its membership and the public of the "adverse effect of the imposition of the ton-mile tax in Nebraska."

The petroleum representative said he feels the measure will be rejected by the people and that will certainly convince the legislators that this type of proposal should not be passed.

If the ton-mile tax does meet with voter approval in November, the legislature, under Nebraska law, still could repeal the measure if it chose to do so.

Associated Press reporters at the capitals of five states with experience with the ton-mile tax have reported that in those states—Ohio, Idaho, Colorado, Oregon and Kansas—the tax has not resulted in any appreciable change in truck traffic.

Cost 3.10 Per Cent

Administration costs in the five states were reported to run about the same, three to four per cent, although Kansas apportioned 10 per cent, the top reported, for enforcement costs. The state has repealed the ton-mile tax, but is said to be considering re-instituting the measure.

Revenues collected in the five states surveyed varied with the amount of truck traffic and the rate of taxation. Idaho reported income of $1,500,000. Ohio, the largest state reporting, has received about $12,000,000 a year, but expects revenues to increase by about $5,000,000 if court appeals on the law result in decisions favorable to the state. Ohio taxes are based on mileage and number of axles rather than mileage and weight.

Most states reported the proposals had been opposed, sometimes hotly, by trucking associations. But in the case of Oregon, the Public Utilities Commission says truckers generally like the system.

Young Moon-Gazer And His Home-Made Telescope

Newcomer Praises Conditions For Moon-Gazing In Nebraska

YORK, Neb.—A recent addition to Nebraska's population, 15-year-old Don Hagman, is enthusiastic about the moon-gazing facilities of the Cornhusker state.

This young astronomer who recently moved here from Detroit, Mich., says, "I see things now through my telescope that I never saw before... the Milky Way... it was pretty hazy at Detroit."

Don became interested in astronomy three years ago and has since designed a six-inch reflecting telescope and through this instrument has become quite well acquainted with the moon.

Can Name Craters

He said his telescope virtually brings the moon down to eye level and he can name many of the craters as a result of his close study.

Young Hagman describes a telescope as "actually an optical illusion, just like your eye-glasses. There is the objective lens which forms the image... the eye-piece magnifies this image."

There are reflecting and refracting telescopes. A refracting telescope, which means a direct view, costs around $1,000 at retail. "That is perhaps the reason the one I don't said."

Less Than $50

The York lad spent less than $50 on his telescope, including $15 for the eye-piece which must be bought commercially.

He used salvage material such as the stand which came from a gum-vending machine, plumbing parts and a lead weight. The telescope will magnify at 24 diameters on low power, but can be set to magnify up to 100.

Not satisfied with the view of a six-inch telescope, Don is now working on an eight-inch instrument to take advantage of Nebraska's clearer view.

This busy lad also is interested in engineering, tennis, swimming, baseball and more recently has developed a hobby of photography, which with astronomy is practically a prerequisite.

Ravenna Gets Pastor

RAVENNA, Neb.—The Rev. Arlyn Russert, pastor at Adair, Okla., the past two years, will become pastor of the Bethlehem Lutheran Church here in September. He has a wife and a small son.

Two trucks will be headquartered here initially, he said, but the project eventually may require 10 to 12 employees.

The plant will sell fertilizer, ammonium nitrate and rock phosphate on a wholesale basis.

'MISS UNIVERSE' ADOPTED IN OMAHA AT AGE OF 3

... By Iowa Pastor, Wife

LOS ANGELES (AP)—From Omaha orphanage to world beauty fame—that's the rise of the recently crowned Miss Universe, Carol Morris of Ottumwa, Iowa.

The 20-year-old brunette said Sunday she was adopted at the age of 3 by the Rev. and Mrs. LaVerne Morris.

"And I have the best parents in the world," Carol said of her foster parents. "I'd never traded them for any in the world."

The Rev. Mr. Morris and his wife said they adopted Carol from the Child Saving Institute in Omaha in 1939 while he

Menace To Peace

It would be presumptuous at this early stage to attempt a definitive analysis and future forecast, based on the abrupt seizure of the Suez canal by Egypt's Nasser government.

Acts of nationalization are not new. Expropriation is a useful and oft-used instrument by shaky revolutionary governments, generally provocative because it offers a means of new income to aid a regime in promised reforms for which it actually has no legitimate funds nor real ideas on how to earn some.

Perhaps in the unfolding of events Egypt will recede from its Suez action. It can be assumed that Nasser has tossed in his gambit and will play it from here, keeping all he can grab, settling for less if he must, or vacating the field if he sees he cannot get away with his act.

As others pursue the running of events which surely will follow, it is timely at this juncture to consider the inevitable problem, other than such as emanate from rivalry between strong powers, in the world's search for peace.

There have been in the past, there are at present and for an incalculable future period certain types of national leaders who respect only the rules as enforced with strength and force. In an atmosphere of peace and disarmament they are more than usually tempted to appropriate whatever they desire.

They are not figures who respond to sweet reason. To them the horrors of nuclear war and the determination of responsible nations not to engage in it, or to risk it with force less than nuclear war for fear of the ultimate consequence, become a greater incentive for grabbing. Such pose a threat to orderly and just existence almost as great as nuclear weapons themselves. They indicate a great and urgent need for greater cooperative restraining power by an international body which can safely act where individual powers dare not become engaged.

Mayor Jeary's Legacy

It was a substantial legacy which outgoing Mayor Clark Jeary left to his successor, Councilman Bennett S. (Abe) Martin, in the report he made on the activities of the office he is to vacate Monday.

The report, in an early page, stressed the need for a sanitary sewer improvement program.

"If there is any department that needs attention more than our sanitary sewers," Jeary said, "I do not know what it is."

To this can be added a hearty "amen." One of the major problems in connection with a sewer program was hit upon when Jeary said, "The area in which the Sanitary District and the city function, is not clearly defined by a law or custom."

That is a pretty flat and general statement but it means that neither the city nor District officials have yet been able to agree upon which governmental sub-division should undertake an improvement program. Until this question is settled, the sewer problem will continue to grow and plague the term of every mayor who faces it.

A plug for more one-way streets was also included in Jeary's report as he outlined a one-way ring around the city which he said "should go forward at once." Motorists who travel the 16th and 17th pair have undoubtedly had the convenience of such a system firmly embedded in their minds in recent weeks.

The construction of a water main in 16th has resulted in a considerable shortening of the one-way pair during these summer months. Having had the one-way system and then being partially deprived of it only serves to emphasize its convenience.

The resigning mayor touched upon another point which has not been widely discussed but merits considerable attention.

"I urge you to keep water rates at such a level as will permit not only the maintenance of the plant and the cost of the bonds," Jeary wrote, "but a surplus account should also be accumulated. If this program had been in effect prior to 1952 there is a possibility that bond issues would not have been required."

There is certainly a clear cut statement covering the importance of a sound financial policy for the water department. How many hundreds of thousands of dollars could be saved if bond issues could be even partially eliminated and how much easier would such a planned replacement and expansion program be on the people of the city?

The right kind of a financial program means a stable water supply and less fluctuation in the economic burden upon the water customers. Such a program could not help but pay big dividends to the community.

First Concern

The Denver Post applauded Colorado wheat farmers who, like their neighbor Nebraskans, cast an approving vote for 1957 federal marketing quotas.

The explanation was interesting. Noting that Colorado farmers have already taken out 563,000 acres of wheat under the soil bank plan for which they are receiving payments in the order of $3.3 million, the Post says that "Normally only about 80 per cent of Colorado wheat is harvested. This year with bad weather the figure will drop below 50 per cent."

Observing that the reduced harvest will cut Colorado production to about its share of the assigned national need it concluded that "Soil bank payments, a $2 a bushel support price and some luck in the weather should bring our farmers greater income than they have had in recent years."

That reflects a good deal of the thinking in the agricultural regions currently. It is not so much in the spirit of surplus reduction through the soil bank plan as a combination of circumstances to take care of the farmer's dollar needs.

It hints that the principle of the soil bank is not deeply embedded in agriculture's thinking except as a device to alleviate what is and has been the principal farming concern—sufficient income to offset outgo.

It is a practical view, but it does not guarantee the future of the soil bank.

Bigger Field

According to Drew Pearson, Warren G. Harding is running against Jesse James for public office in Texas. Judging from the news out of the Illinois state capital on the absence of more than a million dollars of public funds we would say that Harding is good enough for Texas but that fellow James is running in the wrong state.

The Answer?

Voters trying hard for a $25 government bond as a prize have contributed more than 3,000 slogans in behalf of the Republican party during the coming campaign. Perhaps that explains why Harold Stassen came out with the most potent slogan as yet—"Dump Nixon." The GOP will probably rule him out because he is working for the company.

Ike Is Satisfied With 84th Congress

WASHINGTON — In his last meeting with GOP leaders just before Congress adjourned, the President said he was "satisfied" with the legislative record of the 84th Congress, though not exactly jubilant about the boxscore of accomplishment.

The boxscore had been prepared on charts by some of Ike's Madison Avenue advisers, and GOP leaders, looking over Ike's shoulder, could see in separate columns the major bills that had: 1) passed the House, 2) passed the Senate, and 3) received the President's signature.

Scanning these charts, Eisenhower told the leaders:

"I want to thank each of you for all you did to get our program through the Congress. It was a tough job, and I appreciate your efforts. Of course, I didn't get everything I hoped for. But on the whole I am satisfied with the record."

"We're in pretty good shape," he added, apparently meaning that the Republican party could confidently face the coming campaign. However, he expressed disappointment over the Senate's restriction of foreign aid funds, also the scuttling of the civil rights bill.

There were laughs as he referred to the foreign aid battle in which Senate GOP Leader William Knowland helped defeat the President's urgent request for aid to Yugoslavia. Knowland himself managed to muster a grin when Ike, looking squarely at him, declared:

"No, I can't say that I am satisfied with the Senate action."

He expressed hope that a compromise could be worked out by Senate and House joint conferees to remove the Senate hurdle on any new military aid to Yugoslavia.

Knowland reported that the "practical difficulties of the threatened filibuster" dashed any hope of Senate action on the civil rights bill, already approved by the House.

"With the kind of organized Southern opposition we face, there just isn't time to get the bill through the Senate," said Knowland. "Maybe if we had taken it up earlier we would have had a chance, but there was no opportunity with other pressing measures."

"Well, I certainly hope something can be done in the next Congress," the President remarked. "We cannot abandon the responsibility of protecting the rights of minorities. It is not an extreme bill. In fact, it is a very moderate one in my opinion. I can't understand all the fuss about it."

NEWSMAN'S SUMMARY

Summarizing the work of Congress from a newsman's sideline, I would say that the 84th Congress was more than usually representative of the people. When the people raise Cain with Congress, the Congress listens. When the people are apathetic, Congress listens to the lobbyists.

This Congress more than most I have watched listened to the lobbyists. Some lobbyists are bad, some are good. But if you look over the record of the 84th Congress you see few bills passed without the urging of lobbyists. Here is the scorecard:

The Highway Bill—Costing $37,000,000,000 was put across by the truckers, the auto and tire companies, the gasoline companies and the Teamsters Union. It's a good bill, but it wouldn't have passed, at least at this session, without lobbyist support.

The School Construction Bill—Far more important than highways, the school bill had no lobbyists behind it. The teachers are not effective. School children don't know how to lobby. The White House didn't lift its voice audibly while the school debate was on. The bill did not pass.

Hells Canyon—A big federal dam on the last big damsite remaining in the U.S.A. was blocked by private utility lobbies and powerful White House lobbyists who camped out on Capitol Hill and button-holed wavering senators. If the White House had exerted half as much effort for the school bill as it did blocking Hells Canyon, school children would have the promise of new buildings as they start to school in September.

The Farm Bill—was passed, after much haggling, because of the farm lobbyists, among the most potent in the nation.

Old Age Pensions—The pension age for women was lowered and disability payments broadened over the protest of the administration. This came about as a result of pressure from labor and older groups.

Minimum Wages—were increased from 75 cents to one dollar at the insistence of liberal Democrats and labor unions. The administration wanted only 90 cents. Unions had little to gain from pushing the bill because most of their members get higher wages. But they wanted to lift the general buying power of the nation.

The Clean Elections Bill—had no lobbyists behind it. Phil Graham, publisher of the Washington Post, and Senator Hennings of Missouri pushed it relentlessly, but any Senate leaders who are in a position to get big money from big business or big oil are loath to clean up campaign contributions. The Republicans and Sen. Lyndon Johnson, Texas Democrat, both benefited.

Investigation of Lobbying—Obviously there were no lobbyists standing in line to push an investigation of themselves. So this investigation has been scraping slowly through the Washington summer without even revealing its most sensational information—a $5,000 check from Howard Keck of Superior Oil to the Eisenhower dinner right in the middle of the Senate gas debate. Superior Oil has now been indicted, but in connection with the $2,500 which Senator Case rejected, not the $5,000 which the Ike committee kept.

Note—Only important measure which passed without lobbyist support was the foreign aid bill, and it had the most effective voice in the nation—that of the White House—behind it.

Backyard Barbecues Strictly From Hunger

Backyard barbecues are installations whose principal purpose is to prove that nothing holds civilization together so much as a good old family kitchen.

It has been only a few hours since our family returned from the grand opening of Tom Grogan's backyard fireplace, and already we are talking about installing one of our own. It is the only way we can conceive of getting even with Tom.

The Grogans invited us to their grand opening because they know that we are the camping-out type. That was probably why, when we got there, Tom tossed a large bag at me and said, "Here's the charcoal. Why don't you get the fire started while I get the steaks ready? You know all about rubbing sticks together, and things."

I reached obediently into the bag, and it wasn't 10 minutes later that Tom strolled out of the Grogan kitchen and looked at me suspiciously. He said sharply, "Who are you?" I explained that I was his guest—remember?—and he looked disapproving.

"You've changed color," he complained. "The bathroom is at the end of the hall, on your right—and don't touch the door knobs going in. Also, don't leave a ring around the tub when you get out. That charcoal's hard to wash off when it dries."

When I finished my bath and came out again the charcoal was glowing merrily, the steaks were sizzling and the mosquitoes were gathering. Tom had his good humor back. He poked a large steak with a long fork and grinned.

"This one's got your band on it," he informed me. "Boy, is this going to be good." He poked the steak again and it sizzled through the grating onto the charcoal. He said, "Oops!" I said, "Never mind—I like 'em well done."

He probed the steak with his long fork and hauled it out from under the grating. It slipped, flipped, bounced off of Mrs. Grogan's bustle and settled in the grass. I beat the Grogan's Irish setter to it with six inches to spare. Tom looked crestfallen.

"A little seasoning," I remarked glibly, to make him feel better, and tossed it to him. It was too hot to hold. He flipped it onto the grating and it slipped through again. The fat caught fire and Tom was busy for a few minutes saving the other steaks.

When that was attended to he said, "Now we'll get yours out again. It ought to be sterile by now, anyway."

"Never mind," I said politely. "If you've got a couple of hot dogs that I can toast on the end of a stick—"

The hot dogs would have been very good, too, except that I slapped a mosquito, forgetting that the hand with which I did the slapping was holding one of the sticks. The hot dog worked on the slingshot principle, striking my wife in the back of the neck and slithering down her collar.

It was all I could do to keep her from making a spectacle of herself right there.

The way we finally settled things, considering the sudden shortage of food, was that Tom cut his steak in half and I had part of it wrapped up in a bun with relish. It was, I imagine, a very delicious half a steak. At least, the Grogan's Irish setter seemed to think so. He snatched it out of my hand when I was waving what I hoped would be goodbye at some more mosquitoes.

Don't tell the Grogans, but we stopped at a drive-in on the way home for hamburgers. They were grand.

BILL DOBLER At City Hall

On Selection Of A New Mayor

It cannot be remembered when an elective office vacancy in city government was filled without the accompaniment of conflicting interests.

In many respects, there are no grounds for condemnation of such a activity. Groups or individuals are not to be censured for seeking the appointment to public office of those who they feel most nearly follow their own line of thought.

On certain other scores, however, the exertion of influence by interested parties is a practice that cannot be condoned. The primary evils of such a practice are the injustices thereby worked upon officials involved and the control of government by too few a group of individuals.

In the most recent case at point, Councilman Bennett S. (Abe) Martin was appointed by his colleagues to fill out the unexpired term of Mayor Clark Jeary who has resigned. Martin's term of office will serve as judgment of the individual but there is more to the case than the qualities of a single man.

It was generally known that the Council choice for mayor was confined from the beginning between Martin and Councilman Pat Ash. Ash never sought the position openly but it was a foregone conclusion he would have accepted the job had it been offered to him.

There are a great many things that could be said about Ash's qualifications for the job but these things are overshadowed by the more important reason for his failure to receive the appointment. It is firmly believed by many and frankly reported by many that Lincoln businessmen presented a formidable wall of opposition to Ash. Some of these men undoubtedly had what they considered to be good and legitimate reasons for not wanting Ash as mayor. For the most part, however, Ash was opposed because he had failed even to attempt to make friends on or off the Council by his voting record.

Ash consistently voted his own convictions, often times in the face of rather bitter opposition. He never failed to state what he felt were the facts of any issue before the Council, regardless of whom his statement might affect. If he stood alone on an issue, he did not change his vote for the sake of pure harmony or to appear in a more favorable light before any group or individual.

In my judgment the empty mayor's chair was not given to Ash because of his independent record. He was never particularly interested in "playing ball" for the sake of getting along with influential persons. While much more often right than wrong in the stand he took, he did not always see things in a way which increased his popularity among the outside business interests which keep a close watch on the City Hall.

These are the things which beat Ash. Not only are they an injustice upon a highly honest and conscientious public office holder but they are a discouraging sign to other young men like Ash—young men who set out with the courage of their convictions only to find out that a dedication to right is the wrong way to a successful political career.

There is no criticism meant here of Martin, a highly successful businessman who may prove to be a most worthy mayor. It is not meant to say that Ash would have been a better mayor than Martin will be. Each individual is entitled to his own personal opinion in that regard. The purpose here is to point out the belief that it was the influence of businessmen outside the City Council which more nearly resulted in Martin's selection than did an honest comparison of qualifications or any sincere belief of what the job required.

There will be those, both on and off the Council, who will take issue with this. Some of those who do so will be the very ones who have assisted in the development of this issue. But before those people speak out, they should carefully examine their motivating forces and listen carefully to some of those who are not so close to the City Hall.

For a time, such practices as were advanced in this case may pay dividends for small groups of people. But in the long-run, the community will suffer from that kind of government and those who stand to lose the most are the very ones who have blindly set the wheels of destruction in motion.

If a record of conscientious and fearless service in public life is not to be the basis for reward and respect, what type of government can be expected? Such service will slowly whither away and die unless received with an attitude of justice. There need not always be agreement but the right to disagree will not be abolished without the loss of good city government.

In accepting the office of mayor, Martin has already stated he intends to rely heavily upon City Administrator James Mallon. That is exactly the reason for establishment of Mallon's office and the position can come to be a most helpful one for the Council.

To be so, however, it will require not only the reliance on Mallon but the backing of the mayor and Council in carrying out the duties that are to fall to the administrator. If any of the Council work is delegated to Mallon and the delegation not followed by backing, the city government will surely slip backwards.

The time has come, the walrus said,
To speak of many things,
Of shoes, and ships, and sealing-wax,
Of ices, and of kings;
Of cabbage, and kings.

The above quotation reads and listens as well today, as a hundred years ago. This spell of fire heat might also have been included in the items of general conversation, so relax and enjoy it.

Very shortly, the problem of keeping living quarters at a comfortable eighty-five degrees will be an expensive proposition. In fact, very expensive unless you are able to toss the cost on the other fellow.

For those with money, I recommend the purchase of Lincoln municipal water bonds. There is gold in that water, on these hot days.

Political History

Stanton, Neb.
To the Editor of The Lincoln Star:
I wish to correct part of a very interesting article printed recently in an Omaha newspaper.

In regard to the organization of the Populist party in 1891, the next year in 1892, its national convention was held in Omaha and nominated was Gen. James B. Weaver of Iowa as candidate for President. He carried the states of Kansas, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, one vote each in North Dakota and Oregon and received a total of 22 electoral votes, which is not to be made light of for a political organization two years old.

In the winter of 1893 this organization in Nebraska elected Hon. William V. Allen of Madison, Nebraska, as U.S. senator and he proved to be an outstanding man in that exalted body. In 1894 this same political body sponsored and elected Silas A. Holcomb of Custer County as governor.

The correction I want to make is this—it was stated that former President Cleveland carried the electoral vote of Nebraska in 1892 and that due to the great vote-getting ability of J. B. Weaver, President Harrison was forced into third place. These are the facts of the case. Harrison was not hit nearly so hard by the reform movement as Cleveland was. The vote cast was as follows: Harrison (Rep.) polled 87,218. J. B. Weaver (Pop.) was a close second, polling 83,134 votes, and Cleveland a poor Nebraska since its admission into the Union has been traditionally Republican. Until 1890 James E. Boyd was the first governor elected who was not a Republican.

W. J. Bryan was the first candidate for President of the United States to get the electoral vote of Nebraska, who was not of the Republican faith. Mr. Bryan carried it in 1896, lost it in 1900, and carried it again in 1908 over Taft.

For history's sake, let us keep this straight.

Ton-Mile Tax

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star:
I note with interest the Lincoln Star's series of articles highlighting the experience of states which now impose the ton-mile tax. You are to be commended for bringing the issue before your readers.

As a suggestion, you might also want to give your readers a report from those states which have considered the ton-mile tax, adopted it, and then finally saw fit to abolish it.

Georgia, for example, enacted such a tax in 1929 and repealed it in 1937. Iowa enacted a tax in 1925 and repealed hers in 1939. Utah had one in 1925 and repealed it in 1937. Kentucky had one which was repealed as to property carriers in 1938. Oklahoma had one

Menace To Peace

It would be presumptuous at this early stage to attempt a definitive analysis and future forecast, based on the abrupt seizure of the Suez canal by Egypt's Nasser government.

Acts of nationalization are not new. Expropriation is a useful and oft-used instrument by shaky revolutionary governments, generally provocative because it offers a means of new income to aid a regime in promised reforms for which it actually has no legitimate funds nor real ideas on how to earn some.

Perhaps in the unfolding of events Egypt will recede from its Suez action. It can be assumed that Nasser has tossed in his gambit and will play it from here, keeping all he can grab, settling for less if he must, or vacating the field if he sees he cannot get away with his act.

As others pursue the running of events which surely will follow, it is timely at this juncture to consider the inevitable problem, other than such as emanate from rivalry between strong powers, in the world's search for peace.

There have been in the past, there are at present and for an incalculable future period certain types of national leaders who respect only the rules as enforced with strength and force. In an atmosphere of peace and disarmament they are more than usually tempted to appropriate whatever they desire.

They are not figures who respond to sweet reason. To them the horrors of nuclear war and the determination of responsible nations not to engage in it, or to risk it with force less than nuclear war for fear of the ultimate consequence, become a greater incentive for grabbing. Such pose a threat to orderly and just existence almost as great as nuclear weapons themselves. They indicate a great and urgent need for greater cooperative restraining power by an international body which can safely act where individual powers dare not become engaged.

Mayor Jeary's Legacy

It was a substantial legacy which outgoing Mayor Clark Jeary left to his successor, Councilman Bennett S. (Abe) Martin, in the report he made on the activities of the office he is to vacate Monday.

The report, in an early page, stressed the need for a sanitary sewer improvement program.

"If there is any department that needs attention more than our sanitary sewers," Jeary said, "I do not know what it is."

To this can be added a hearty "amen." One of the major problems in connection with a sewer program was hit upon when Jeary said, "The area in which the Sanitary District and the city function, is not clearly defined by a law or custom."

That is a pretty flat and general statement but it means that neither the city nor District officials have yet been able to agree upon which governmental sub-division should undertake an improvement program. Until this question is settled, the sewer problem will continue to grow and plague the term of every mayor who faces it.

A plug for more one-way streets was also included in Jeary's report as he outlined a one-way ring around the city which he said "should go forward at once." Motorists who travel the 16th and 17th pair have undoubtedly had the convenience of such a system firmly embedded in their minds in recent weeks.

The construction of a water main in 16th has resulted in a considerable shortening of the one-way pair during these summer months. Having had the one-way system and then being partially deprived of it only serves to emphasize its convenience.

The resigning mayor touched upon another point which has not been widely discussed but merits considerable attention.

"I urge you to keep water rates at such a level as will permit not only the maintenance of the plant and the cost of the bonds," Jeary wrote, "but a surplus account should also be accumulated. If this program had been in effect prior to 1952 there is a possibility that bond issues would not have been required."

There is certainly a clear cut statement covering the importance of a sound financial policy for the water department. How many hundreds of thousands of dollars could be saved if bond issues could be even partially eliminated and how much easier would such a planned replacement and expansion program be on the people of the city?

The right kind of a financial program means a stable water supply and less fluctuation in the economic burden upon the water customers. Such a program could not help but pay big dividends to the community.

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

Remember the dates. They are such an eloquent part of an awesome, familiar drama which unfolded in Nebraska and other parts of the great North American plains in these closing days of July of 1956. It was July 23. A cooling breeze caressed the cheeks of Nebraska corn-growers and their wives as, in the early morning hours, in deep faith and hope they looked out upon sturdy, dark green fields of corn. There was a possible crop to replenish crops empty from last year's drought. We planted in this season of 1956 more than 6 million acres of corn—a far cry from the huge acreages of other years but nevertheless enough to place corn in top rank as Nebraska's major crop, unfortunately the great bulk of it planted where the dependence must be on dry-land farming.

We had been living so near to paradise when the sun rose early that morning of Thursday, July 26. For most of July it had been so delightfully cool and thanks to coolness and timely showers there was the added promise of green fields. But by midafternoon the thermometer had risen to 105—higher at some other Nebraska points—and a million acres of that six million plus acres of corn suffered damage—in some instances irrevocable—and in the gathering dusk came the death of hope for this season for thousands of corn growers. Remember the date. It was July 27, 1956—still another punishing day of heat over thousands of square miles of these great North American plains to the west of the Missouri River. And before nightfall another two and a half million acres of dry land corn in Nebraska had taken a beating to reduce, on the basis of conservative estimates, the potential yield 50 per cent.

We hope in the cool solitude of his air-conditioned office in Washington Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson finds relaxation from his anxiety and worries over surpluses of corn, wheat and one or two other crops, the prices of which have been supported by Uncle Sam. Mr. Benson has been worrying so much about surpluses that we wonder at times if the man actually has any room left for understanding and sympathy for the heartache of thousands of farm families who stand helplessly by while their fields wither and die. It has happened before, it will happen again. Old Mother Nature west of the Missouri can be both so brutal and so generous. And we also wonder at times if thousands in the cities—if thousands in Lincoln for example—gave thought and pause to what really took place in those 48 hours of a punishing Nebraska weekend.

President Eisenhower and his Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson are not to blame for the drought sweeping some of these states which are the nation's backbone in wheat and corn production. The farm program today is not the farm program President Eisenhower outlined in a campaign for election in 1952. Mr. Eisenhower gave a specific pledge to support basic farm commodities at 90 per cent of parity. Secretary Benson's determination to substitute the program of flexible price supports (of course the Secretary of Agriculture took that step undoubtedly with the approval of the President) is not responsible for the destruction of corn but we do hope after two years of fumbling and bungling Mr. Benson becomes a little bit aware—more sympathetic—more understanding—of the great gamble upon which the American farmer embarks each year. Then he should recognize America did not become great by curtailed production. The American success story is the story of abundance.

We may discover in these Middle West cities and towns that the distance between farm and city street is not measured always or necessarily by miles. We have lost a corn crop for the second straight year. We hope Secretary Benson is satisfied that his fear of surpluses may have been premature and unfounded. Another year and we could be thanking our lucky stars that we have the reserve stocks of corn in storage.

formidable wall of opposition to Ash.

Some of these men undoubtedly had what they considered to be good and legitimate reasons for not wanting Ash as mayor. For the most part, however, Ash was opposed because he had failed even to attempt to make friends on or off the Council by his voting record.

Ash consistently voted his own convictions, often times in the face of rather bitter opposition. He never failed to state what he felt were the facts of any issue before the Council, regardless of whom his statement might affect. If he stood alone on an issue, he did not change his vote for the sake of pure harmony or to appear in a more favorable light before any group or individual.

In my judgment the empty mayor's chair was not given to Ash because of his independent record. He was never particularly interested in "playing ball" for the sake of getting along with influential persons. While much more often right than wrong in the stand he took, he did not always see things in a way which increased his popularity among the outside business interests which keep a close watch on the City Hall.

These are the things which beat Ash. Not only are they an injustice upon a highly honest and conscientious public office holder but they are a discouraging sign to other young men like Ash—young men who set out with the courage of their convictions only to find out that a dedication to right is the wrong way to a successful political career.

There is no criticism meant here of Martin, a highly successful businessman who may prove to be a most worthy mayor. It is not meant to say that Ash would have been a better mayor than Martin will be. Each individual is entitled to his own personal opinion in that regard. The purpose here is to point out the belief that it was the influence of businessmen outside the City Council which more nearly resulted in Martin's selection than did an honest comparison of qualifications or any sincere belief of what the job required.

There will be those, both on and off the Council, who will take issue with this. Some of those who do so will be the very ones who have assisted in the development of this issue. But before those people speak out, they should carefully examine their motivating forces and listen carefully to some of those who are not so close to the City Hall.

For a time, such practices as were advanced in this case may pay dividends for small groups of people. But in the long-run, the community will suffer from that kind of government and those who stand to lose the most are the very ones who have blindly set the wheels of destruction in motion.

If a record of conscientious and fearless service in public life is not to be the basis for reward and respect, what type of government can be expected? Such service will slowly wither away and die unless received with an attitude of justice. There need not always be agreement but the right to disagree will not be abolished without the loss of good city government.

In accepting the office of mayor, Martin has already stated he intends to rely heavily upon City Administrator James Mallon. That is exactly the reason for establishment of Mallon's office and the position can come to be a most helpful one for the Council.

To be so, however, it will require not only the reliance on Mallon but the backing of the mayor and Council in carrying out the duties that are to fall to the administrator. If any of the Council work is delegated to Mallon and the delegation not followed by backing, the city government will surely slip backwards.

To the Editor of The Lincoln Star:
"The time has come, the walrus said,
To speak of many things,
Of shoes, and ships, and sealing-wax,
Of cabbages, and kings."

The above quotation reads and listens as well today, as a hundred years ago. This spell of free heat might also have been included in the items of general conversation, so relax and enjoy it.

Very shortly, the problem of keeping living quarters at a comfortable eighty-five degrees will be an expensive proposition. In fact, very expensive unless you are able to toss the cost on the other fellow.

For those with money, I recommend the purchase of Lincoln municipal water bonds. There is gold in that water, on these hot days.

LEO N. BARTUNEK

Stanton, Neb.

To the Editor of The Lincoln Star: I wish to correct part of a very interesting article printed recently in an Omaha newspaper.

In regard to the organization of the Populist party in 1891, the next year in 1892, its national convention was held in Omaha and nominated was Gen. James B. Weaver of Iowa as candidate for President. He carried the states of Kansas, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, one vote each in North Dakota and Oregon and received a total of 22 electoral votes, which is not to be made light of for a political organization two years old.

In the winter of 1893 this organization in Nebraska elected Hon. William V. Allen of Madison, Nebraska, as U.S. senator and he proved to be an outstanding man in that exalted body. In 1894 this same political body sponsored and elected Silas A. Holcomb of Custer County as governor.

The correction I want to make is this—it was stated that former President Cleveland carried the electoral vote of Nebraska in 1892 and that due to the great vote-getting ability of J. B. Weaver, President Harrison was forced into third place. These are the facts of the case. Harrison was not hit nearly so hard by the reform movement as Cleveland was. The vote cast was as follows: Harrison (Rep.) polled 87,218. J. B. Weaver (Pop.) was a close second, polling 83,134 votes, and Cleveland a poor Nebraska since its admission into the Union has been traditionally Republican. Until 1890 James E. Boyd was the first governor elected who was not a Republican.

W. J. Bryan was the first candidate for President of the United States to get the electoral vote of Nebraska, who was not of the Republican faith. Mr. Bryan carried it in 1896, lost it in 1900, and carried it again in 1908 over Taft.

For history's sake, let us keep this straight.

OLD TIMER

Lincoln, Neb.

To the editor of the Lincoln Star: I note with interest the Lincoln Star's series of articles highlighting the experience of states which now impose the ton-mile tax. You are to be commended for bringing the issue before your readers.

As a suggestion, you might also want to give your readers a report from those states which have repealed the ton-mile tax, adopted it, and then finally saw fit to abolish it.

Georgia, for example, enacted such a tax in 1929 and repealed it in 1937. Iowa enacted a tax in 1925 and repealed hers in 1939. Utah had one in 1925 and repealed it in 1937. Kentucky had one which was repealed as to property carriers in 1938. Oklahoma had one which was repealed as to property carriers in 1939. Tennessee repealed the tax in 1939 except as to certain non-resident passenger carriers, and Wisconsin made its tax optional with a weight tax in 1937. Minnesota repealed the alternative mileage tax in 1949. In addition, Kansas last year repealed her ton-mile tax law.

That record might be aptly characterized as a rather unusually high mortality rate for tax laws. We know that once a tax law gets on the books, it is little short of a miracle to get it off. There must be some reason.

C. RUSSELL LOCKWOOD

Editor's Note: An article on Nebraska's ton-mile tax, which dropped the ton-mile tax last year, was included in The Star's series on the tax. However, it appeared after Mr. Lockwood's letter was written.

On Election Eve

Lincoln, Neb.

To the Editor of The Lincoln Star: As the November election will be soon Governor Anderson says that he is going to crack down on state expenses, after necessary phone calls and trips out-of-state to Chicago, Washington and all the other trips. This is something the governor ought to have done earlier. He took office almost two years ago. He knew about it then—so why did he just notice it on the eve of the November election?

MISS VIRGINIA ANN NOBLE

Of particular interest this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Myron D. Noble of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Virginia Ann, to Ronald Steen, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Steen of Mokena, Ill.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, Sept. 15. Miss Noble is a graduate of the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Delta Gamma sorority. Mr. Steen was graduated from the University of Illinois College of Engineering.

The Brides' Book Says:

In pre-nuptial courtesy to their daughter, Miss Marlene Fleischmann, who will become the bride of George M. Mink of Omaha on Sunday, Aug. 5, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Fleischmann will entertain at dinner next Friday evening at the Lincoln Hotel.

The bride-elect will include members of the family and the wedding attendants for the ceremony, which will be solemnized at 3 o'clock at the First Presbyterian Church.

The bride-elect was honored last Thursday evening when Mrs. Ralph Waybright and her daughter, Miss Phillis Waybright, were hostesses at their home. A tableware shower was presented to Miss Fleischmann, and included among the 12 guests were Mr. Mink's mother, Mrs. George Mink, and Miss Louise Wallin, both of Omaha.

An August bride-elect who was honored last week is Miss Donna Boehmer, whose marriage to Norvin Pearce will be solemnized on Sunday, Aug. 12, at St. Paul Methodist Church.

Last Thursday evening, Miss Donna Kalina and Miss Arlene Heideman were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower for the bride-to-be at their apartment.

Had Sunday Wedding

At a 4 o'clock ceremony on Sunday afternoon, July 29, the marriage of Miss Eleanor Rolfsmeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Rolfsmeier of Milford, to John F. Ficke, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ficke, also of Milford, was solemnized at the First Methodist Church in Milford. The Rev. S. G. Rasmussen read the lines of the service before a background of yellow and white gladioli, greenery, and lighted candles in seven-branched candelabra. Mrs. Wesley Matzke, organist, played the wedding music.

The maid of honor, Miss Doris Rolfsmeier, sister of the bride; and the bridesmaids, Miss Gladys Rolfsmeier, also a sister of the bride, and Miss Janice Kellough of Friend, appeared in alike frocks of embroidered yellow organdy over matching taffeta. The sleeveless bodices, fashioned with bateau necklines, were snugly fitted above the bouffant skirts, and their costumes were completed with picture hats of yellow tulle patterned with white flowers. Each carried a bouquet of yellow gladioli on a yellow tulle fan. Mrs. Gladys Sack and Miss Jeanne Williams lighted the candles, and Diane Rolfsmeier was her sister's flower girl. Tommy Rolfsmeier, cousin of the bride, carried the rings.

Quentin Huska of Omaha served Mr. Ficke as best man, and seating the guests were Robert Ficke, brother of the bridegroom; Gerald Rolfsmeier, Jr., brother of the bride, and Ralph Ficke.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of tulle and lace over taffeta. A shoulder-wide yoke of lace slipped into brief sleeves, and filled in the deep V neckline of the tulle bodice, and the lace was repeated to form a brief peplum over the voluminous, floor-length skirt of tulle. A small shell hat of lace, dotted with seed pearls, and caught with clusters of orange blossoms, held to the head her veil of illusion, and she carried white orchids on a white Bible. Mr. Ficke and his bride, following a reception in the church parlors, left for a short honeymoon trip to Missouri after which they will reside in Lincoln. For traveling Mrs. Ficke wore a white frock with blue and white accessories. The bride will continue her studies at Nebraska Wesleyan University. Mr. Ficke is a student at the University of Nebraska.

AROUND THE TOWN

IT ISN'T a bona fide rule by any means, but it just so happens that the morning begins a busy week that follows a busy week-end—And since the week-end was rather gay we'll start the day's work with news of the Friday-through-Sunday period. Saturday evening, so we learned, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Jovenat were host and hostess at a family dinner at their home, as an informal courtesy to Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Webster of Tucson, Ariz., who arrived in Lincoln on Thursday and who will remain until after the wedding of their son, Thomas Webster, and Miss Ann Jovenat on Wednesday.

AND when Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sands entertained at dinner on Sunday evening at Hotel Cornhusker, it was to honor Mrs. Sands' father, Edward Platt of New York City, and Mrs. Platt. The party also was in celebration of Mr. Platt's birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Platt arrived from New York on Thursday and will leave today for the west coast from where they will sail on a cruise to the Orient.

ON Monday evening's calendar is the dinner for which Mrs. Floyd Crider will be hostess when she entertains at Hotel Cornhusker. Mrs. Crider's party pays pre-nuptial courtesy to her niece, Miss Ann Jovenat, and Miss Jovenat's fiance, Thomas Webster. The guest list of 20 will include only members of the families.

LOOKING ahead—as far as late week, we find that the members of the Saturday Night Birthday Club which, in reality, isn't a birthday club at all—will be the guests of Mrs. Hazel Smith when the entertainers at dinner at Hotel Cornhusker. Following dinner the group of 12 will spend the evening with bridge.

A NEW number in our address book is 1131 So. 37th St. where Mr. and Mrs. Alex Cochrane are now all settled in their new home. Mr. and Mrs. Cochrane formerly resided at 3841 D St.

SOMEONE told us that Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Porter, their son, Charles, and Mr. Porter's mother, Mrs. D. B. Porter of Omaha, have hied themselves off to Idaho Falls, Idaho, where they are having a holiday.

AND vacationing in Montana is Mrs. Perry Colbert who is the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alden Colbert, who reside near Missoula. Before returning home Mrs. Perry will visit relatives in various sections of Idaho.

NOW to a party for which Mr. and Mrs. Dana Cole were host and hostess on Wednesday evening when they entertained at dinner at the Lincoln Country Club in courtesy to Miss Cora Lee Critchfield and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Critchfield of Tecumseh.

Miss Critchfield's marriage to Thomas Gilliland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Gilliland of Tecumseh, will take place in late August.

THE STAR IN SUBURBIA

"I wish—I wish—I wish—but there were so many things to 'wish for' when Little Chris Williamson blew out the five candles on her birthday cake, that she just couldn't decide what she wanted the most—We are certain, however, that after opening the many gifts she received from her friends and their mothers at her birthday party, Chris had no desire to 'wish' for anything else.

And the guests who Mrs. George Williamson entertained at luncheon and an informal afternoon on Thursday in honor of her daughter, were Mrs. Robert Mullen and her son, Bobby; Mrs. David Bornemeier and her children, Richard and Nancy; Mrs. Joe Davis and son Fritz; Mrs. Glen Gordon, her daughter, Barbara and son, Russell; Susie Wentink and Jeff Lempeke.

The young Miss Williamson isn't the only member of the younger set in Corner Terrace to be mentioned this week—Learned that Nancy Bornemeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bornemeier, and Norma Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Mason will be among the members of the Blue Bird Camp Fire Girls, leaving Monday for a week of fun and excitement at Camp Kiwanis, Milford.

Also heard that young Scott Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hanson, has been spending a week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Lipke, Omaha. Imagine he will be glad to see his parents and sister, Claudia on Sunday when they drive to Omaha, where the Hanson foursome will spend the day.

Heading the list of hosts and hostesses this week are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wall, Marjorie and Rachel, who entertained Mrs. Wall's brother and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Janzen, Carolyn, Mark, Christine and Michael, Fresno, Calif.; and another brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Janzen, Chicago, Ill. On Sunday afternoon the group attended a family picnic at Henderson, which is the home-town of Mrs. Wall and her two brothers. The Victor Janzens will remain in Lincoln until Tuesday morning and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Janzen will return home on Monday.

Understand that Mr. and Mrs. Phil Carlson, Seattle, Wash., stopped off in Lincoln on Wednesday for a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Almquist. On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Almquist honored the visitors when they entertained at a barbeque supper, and when their guest list included Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Arlyn Thiesfeld and their daughter, Christy; Miss Viola Bloom and Mrs. Keith Larson and her daughter, Donna Fay.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson left later in the week for Omaha where they will spend some time.

Joining Mrs. Paul McCoy and their children Mickey, Bobby and Tony, who spent last week

We Hear That

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Ekblad have returned home from Topeka, Kan., where they attended the wedding of their niece, Miss Nancy Brinker. Mr. and Mrs. Ekblad are former residents of Topeka.

Double Ring Service

MRS. EDWARD VAN VELSON

All-white gladioli decorated the chancel of Calvary Lutheran Church in Lincoln Sunday afternoon, July 29, for the marriage of Miss Beverly Ann Sieck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sieck of Denton, to Edward Van Velson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Van Velson of Ogallala. The double ring ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. W. W. Koenig assisted by Dr. P. A. Zimmerman, president of Concordia College at Seward, and Mrs. William Lindner of Malcolm, organist, played the wedding music. Mrs. Lindner also accompanied Miss Betty Sellers of Houston, Tex., the vocal soloist.

As the matron of honor, Mrs. Carl Broders appeared in a ballerina-length frock of blue crystal, the flaring skirt veiled with matching blue net. Wearing similar ensembles were the bridesmaids, Miss Ardith Alpert, Paola, Kan., Mrs. Donald Thompson, Ogallala, and Miss Kathryn Sieck, and the junior bridesmaids, Miss Patty Sieck and Miss Sandra Sieck of Denton. Miss Dionne Smith was the flower girl, and carrying the rings was Vernon Broders.

Donald Eichner of Ogallala served as best man, and the ushers were Norvin Frerichs, Ft. Collins, Colo., Howard Frerichs, Ogallala, and Carl Broders.

White Chantilly-type lace and tulle over satin fashioned the bride's gown. Seed pearls and iridescent sequins patterned the floral motif of the lace to frame the high V neckline, and the molded bodice of lace was completed by long, tapered sleeves. The lace was repeated in the trim of the full tulle skirt, and her illusion veil was held to the head by a halo of jeweled lace. She carried a white prayer book ornamented with a cluster of white roses.

Following the reception in the parlors, Mr. and Mrs. Van Velson left for St. Louis, Mo., where they will reside.

Mrs. Van Velson is a former student at Concordia College in Seward, and is employed at the Hope Lutheran Church, St. Ann, Mo.

In the presence of members of the immediate families, the marriage of Miss Carol Elizabeth Puckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Puckett of Sioux City, Ia., and George A. Work, son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Work of Omaha, was solemnized late Saturday afternoon, July 28, at the home of Mrs. Madeline W. Schmidt. A fan-shaped arrangement of white gladioli formed the background for the 5 o'clock service, the lines of which were read by the Rev. Vance Rogers, minister of Trinity Methodist Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her wedding a gown of white chiffon designed in the daytime mode. Soft folds of chiffon edged the rounded décolletage and extended over the shoulders to form abbreviated sleeves, and beneath the elongated bodice, the skirt flared into extreme fullness. Her small cap was fashioned of folds of the chiffon, and she carried a single white orchid.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner for the members of the family was held at the Hotel Cornhusker, and later in the evening, a reception for a small group of friends was held at the home of Mrs. Schmidt.

Mr. and Mrs. Work will make their home at 6902 Francis.

A graduate of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music, Oberlin, O., where she also received her Masters Degree in music, the bride is a member of the faculty of the University of Nebraska School of Music. Mr. Work, who is a senior at the University of Nebraska College of Engineering, is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y., and a former member of the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D. C.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Work are members of the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra. The bride also plays with the Sioux City Symphony Orchestra, and Mr. Work is a member of the Omaha Symphony Orchestra.

Birthday Honoree

Mrs. Ida DeLair, who celebrated her 83rd birthday anniversary Thursday, July 26, was the guest of honor Friday evening at a patio supper held at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. DeLair.

Sharing honors with his grandmother was Steven DeLair, who marked his 12th birthday on Friday, July 27.

Family members attending the supper included Mrs. DeLair's son, George DeLair, her daughter, Mrs. Blanche Morrissey, and her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. C. V. Gibbons.

Was Bride On Sunday

MRS. BERNARD WISHNOW

Clusters of lighted white candles and tall arrangements of white and pink gladioli were placed on either side of a white satin canopy, swagged with smilax and caught with nosegays of the gladioli florets, to form the background at Tifereth Israel Synagogue for the marriage of Miss Gail Rae Katskee, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Katskee, to Bernard Wishnow, son of Mrs. Hyman Wishnow, on Sunday afternoon, July 29. In the presence of 300 guests, the service was solemnized at 4 o'clock by Rabbi Harold Stern, and Roger Wishmeier, organist, played the wedding music. Preceding the service, Mr. Wishmeier also accompanied Emanuel Wishnow, violinist and brother of the bridegroom.

Frosted identically in cameo pink nylon sheer over taffeta were Mrs. Alan Katskee, the matron of honor, Miss Rosemary Weeks of Kearney, and Miss Sharon Mangold, Bennington, the bridesmaids, and Mrs. Robert Young and Mrs. Norman Krivosha, the bridesmaids.

Emanuel Wishnow served his brother as best man, and seating the guests were Marvin Breslow, Jack Rogers, Paul Jordan and Norman Krivosha. The bride's period gown of white nylon sheer over taffeta was embroidered with silk in a floral motif. Embroidered scallops formed the heartshaped décolletage and formed the brief cap sleeves of the molded bodice, and were repeated at the hem of the extremely full danseuse skirt which was caught at the back into a cascade bustle formed by tiers of shirred nylon. A coronet of pearl-trimmed satin held her veil of illusion, and she carried a Bible, an heirloom in the family for more than 100 years, showered with white sweetheart roses and miniature ivy leaves.

A reception was held in the social hall of the Synagogue, after which the couple left for a wedding trip to New York City and Washington, D. C. Mrs. Wishnow wore for traveling a three-piece ensemble in beige wool with brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Wishnow will reside at 1116 So. 15th in Lincoln, where the bridegroom, a member of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity and Phi Delta Phi law fraternity, is a senior at the University of Nebraska College of Law.

The bride is a June graduate of the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Sigma Delta Tau sorority, Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Lambda Delta, Alpha Epsilon Rho and served as president of Mortar Board senior women's honorary.

Miss Critchfield's marriage to Thomas Gilliland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Gilliland of Tecumseh, will take place in late August.

THE STAR IN SUBURBIA

"I wish—I wish—I wish—but there were so many things to 'wish for' when Little Chris Williamson blew out the five candles on her birthday cake, that she just couldn't decide what she wanted the most—We are certain, however, that after opening the many gifts she received from her friends and their mothers at her birthday party, Chris had no desire to 'wish' for anything else.

And the guests who Mrs. George Williamson entertained at luncheon and an informal afternoon on Thursday in honor of her daughter, were Mrs. Robert Mullen and her son, Bobby; Mrs. David Bornemeier and her children, Richard and Nancy; Mrs. Joe Davis and son Fritz; Mrs. Glen Gordon, her daughter, Barbara and son, Russell; Susie Wentink and Jeff Lempe.

The young Miss Williamson isn't the only member of the younger set in Cotner Terrace to be mentioned this week—Learned that Nancy Bornemeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bornemeier, and Norma Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Mason will be among the members of the Blue Bird Camp Fire Girls, leaving Monday for a week of fun and excitement at Camp Kiwanis, Milford.

Also heard that young Scott Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hanson, has been spending a week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Lipke, Omaha. Imagine he will be glad to see his parents and sister, Claudia on Sunday when they drive to Omaha, where the Hanson foursome will spend the day.

Heading the list of hosts and hostesses this week are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wall, Mariam and Rachel, who entertained Mrs. Wall's brother and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Janzen, Carolyn, Mark, Christine and Michael, Fresno, Calif.; and another brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Janzen, Chicago, Ill. On Sunday afternoon the group attended a family picnic at Henderson, which is the home-town of Mrs. Wall and her two brothers. The Victor Janzens will remain in Lincoln until Tuesday morning and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Janzen will return home on Monday.

Understand that Mr. and Mrs. Phil Carlson, Seattle, Wash., stopped off in Lincoln on Wednesday for a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Almqvist. On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Almqvist honored the visitors when they entertained at a barbeque supper, and when their guest list included Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Arlyn Thiesfeld and their daughter, Christy; Miss Viola Bloom and Mrs. Keith Larson and her daughter, Donna Fay.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson left later in the week for Omaha where they will spend some time. Joining Mrs. Paul McCoy and their children Mickey, Bobby and Tony, who spent last week

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Ekblad have returned home from Topeka, Kan., where they attended the wedding of their niece, Miss Nancy Brinker. Mr. and Mrs. Ekblad are former residents of Topeka.

Double Ring Service

MRS. EDWARD VAN VELSON

All-white gladioli decorated the chancel of Calvary Lutheran Church in Lincoln Sunday afternoon, July 29, for the marriage of Miss Beverly Ann Sieck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sieck of Denton, to Edward Van Velsion, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Van Velsion of Ogallala. The double ring ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. W. W. Koenig assisted by Dr. P. A. Zimmerman, president of Concordia College at Seward, and Mrs. William Lindner of Malcolm, organist, played the wedding music. Mrs. Lindner also accompanied Miss Betty Sellers of Houston, Tex., the vocal soloist.

As the matron of honor, Mrs. Carl Broders appeared in a ballerina-length frock of blue crystaletta, the flaring skirt veiled with matching blue net. Wearing similar ensembles were the bridesmaids, Miss Ardith Alpert, Paola, Kan., Mrs. Donald Thompson, Ogallala, and Miss Kathryn Sieck, and the junior bridesmaids, Miss Patty Sieck and Miss Sandra Sieck of Denton. Miss Dionne Smith was the flower girl, and carrying the rings was Vernon Broders.

Donald Eichner of Ogallala served as best man, and the ushers were Norvin Frerichs, Ft. Collins, Colo., Howard Frerichs, Ogallala, and Carl Broders. White Chantilly-type lace and tulle over satin fashioned the bride's gown. Seed pearls and iridescent sequins patterned the floral motif of the lace to frame the high V neckline, and the molded bodice of lace was completed by long, tapered sleeves. The lace was repeated in the trim of the full tulle skirt, and her illusion veil was held to the head by a halo of jeweled lace. She carried a white prayer book ornamented with a cluster of white roses.

Following the reception in the parlors, Mr. and Mrs. Van Velsion left for St. Louis, Mo., where they will reside.

Mrs. Van Velsion is a former student at Concordia College in Seward, and is employed at the Hope Lutheran Church, St. Ann, Mo.

Afternoon Wedding

In the presence of members of the immediate families, the marriage of Miss Carol Elizabeth Puckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Puckett of Sioux City, Ia., and George A. Work, son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Work of Omaha, was solemnized late Saturday afternoon, July 28, at the home of Mrs. Madeline W. Schmidt. A fan-shaped arrangement of white gladioli formed the background for the 5 o'clock service, the lines of which were read by the Rev. Vance Rogers, minister of Trinity Methodist Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her wedding a gown of white chiffon designed in the daytime mode. Soft folds of chiffon edged the rounded décolletage and extended over the shoulders to form abbreviated sleeves, and beneath the elongated bodice, the skirt flared into extreme fullness. Her small cap was fashioned of folds of the chiffon, and she carried a single white orchid.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner for the members of the family was held at the Hotel Cornhusker, and later in the evening, a reception for a small group of friends was held at the home of Mrs. Schmidt.

Mr. and Mrs. Work will make their home at 6902 Francis. A graduate of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music, Oberlin, O., where she also received her Masters Degree in music, the bride is a member of the faculty of the University of Nebraska School of Music. Mr. Work, who is a senior at the University of Nebraska College of Engineering, is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y., and a former member of the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D. C.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Work are members of the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra. The bride also plays with the Sioux City Symphony Orchestra, and Mr. Work is a member of the Omaha Symphony Orchestra.

Birthday Honoree

Mrs. Ida DeLair, who celebrated her 83rd birthday anniversary Thursday, July 26, was the guest of honor Friday evening at a patio supper held at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. DeLair.

Sharing honors with his grandmother was Steven DeLair, who marked his 12th birthday on Friday, July 27.

Family members attending the supper included Mrs. DeLair's son, George DeLair, her daughter, Mrs. Blanche Morrissey, and her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. C. V. Gibbons.

Was Bride On Sunday

MRS. BERNARD WISHNOW

Clusters of lighted white candles and tall arrangements of white and pink gladioli were placed on either side of a white satin canopy, swagged with smilax and caught with nosegays of the gladioli florets, to form the background at Tifereth Israel Synagogue for the marriage of Miss Gail Rae Katskee, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Katskee, to Bernard Wishnow, son of Mrs. Hyman Wishnow, on Sunday afternoon, July 29. In the presence of 300 guests, the service was solemnized at 4 o'clock by Rabbi Harold Stern, and Roger Wisnemeier, organist, played the wedding music. Preceding the service, Mr. Wisnemeier also accompanied Emanuel Wishnow, violinist and brother of the bridegroom.

Frocked identically in cameo pink nylon sheer over taffeta were Mrs. Alan Katskee, as the matron of honor, Miss Rosemary Weeks of Kearney, and Miss Sharon Mangold, Bennington, the bridesmaids, and Mrs. Robert Young and Mrs. Norman Krivosha, the bridesmaids. Emanuel Wishnow served his brother as best man, and seating the guests were Marvin Breslow, Jack Rogers, Paul Jordan and Norman Krivosha. The bride's period gown of white nylon sheer over taffeta was embroidered with silk in a floral motif. Embroidered scallops formed the heartshaped décolletage and formed the brief cap sleeves of the molded bodice, and were repeated at the hem of the extremely full danseuse skirt which was caught at the back into a cascade bustle formed by tiers of shirred nylon. A coronet of pearl-trimmed satin held her veil of illusion, and she carried a Bible, an heirloom in the family for more than 100 years, showered with white sweetheart roses and miniature ivy leaves.

A reception was held in the social hall of the Synagogue, after which the couple left for a wedding trip to New York City and Washington, D. C. Mrs. Wishnow wore for traveling a three-piece ensemble in beige wool with brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Wishnow will reside at 1116 So. 15th in Lincoln, where the bridegroom, a member of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity and Phi Delta Phi law fraternity, is a senior at the University of Nebraska College of law.

The bride is a June graduate of the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Sigma Delta Tau sorority, Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Lambda Delta, Alpha Epsilon Rho and served as president of Mortar Board senior women's honorary.

Stockholm's Foghorn Not Working, Engines In Reverse—Crewman

NEW YORK (AP)—A crewman aboard the Swedish liner Stockholm said Sunday the vessel's powerful foghorn was not in operation at the time of her crash with the Andrea Doria.

Bernabe Polanco Garcia, a Spanish cleaning man on the ship, insisted he could not be mistaken about the foghorn. He said that when it was operating, its sound was overpowering.

Meanwhile, the Italian Line continued to list two of the Doria passengers as known dead and 18 "missing and presumed dead" in the fog-shrouded disaster.

Presumed Dead

Two of the Stockholm's crewmen were killed when their ship's prow smashed into the Doria's side off Nantucket Island last Wednesday night. The Swedish Line says three other Stockholm seamen are presumed dead.

Additionally, the Italian Line Sunday night listed 45 Doria passengers as unaccounted for—individuals believed safe but about whom no accurate information has as yet been obtained.

The list was cut from 73 at the beginning of the day.

Earlier there was a report from the Coast Guard that the Italian Line had raised its roster of dead and presumed dead for the Doria to 37.

Denied Report

But the line denied issuing such figures and the Coast Guard said it had been misquoted.

Polanco Garcia was the man who rescued 14-year-old Linda Morgan, stepdaughter of Camille Ciantarra, Madrid correspondent of the New York Times, from the wreckage of the Stockholm's prow. She had been plucked from her cabin aboard the Doria by the impact of the collision.

Engines Reversed

The Stockholm seaman also said he is equally sure that his ship's engines were reversed before the impact.

On the heels of criticism and defense of the Doria's crew, two Stockholm passengers charged that the ship's officers gave no direction in the emergency.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Post of Farmington, Conn., said that minutes after the crash Stockholm passengers rushed to the deck but found no one there to give them instructions or to tell them the condition of the ship.

The Swedish ship now is in a Brooklyn drydock for repairs. Two of the vessel's crewmen died in the crash and three other crew members are missing and presumed dead.

Figures concerning fatalities and those rescued have varied since the Doria went down.

All records reported went down with the ship, including the navigation, radio and radar logs.

Skin divers reported the Andrea Doria is lying in about 250 feet of water. The divers said they saw a great deal of debris but no signs of bodies.

Capt. Raoul de Beaudan, skipper of the liner Ile de France which took part in the rescue, told the Philadelphia Sunday Bulletin by ship-to-shore phone that his own radar sighted the Doria and Stockholm from 15 miles away when he went to their aid.

Alexander Forza, a vacationing American merchant marine officer returning aboard the Doria, told of Calamai's insistence he would go down with his ship.

The skipper was only dissuaded from doing so, Forza said, when a number of crew members told Calamai they would return and stay with him unless he left the vessel.

Maine Cons Try Escape With Bombs

THOMASTON, Maine (U)—A group of inmates at Maine State Prison Sunday made a fruitless attempt to fight their way to freedom with homemade gasoline fire bombs.

A fire which officials said was started as a diversion destroyed the prison printing shop. Warden Allen L. Robbins said "several unidentified inmates" assaulted an entrance with rocks and homemade gasoline bombs.

One bomb went over the wall, the others fell short of their marks and all burned out harmlessly. The rocks smashed windows in the guard tower, he said.

At the same time, a fire started in the printing shop, which was completely destroyed "at a loss of several thousand dollars," Robbins said.

Also damaged were a machine shop, the prisoners' commissary and an automobile license plate shop, as the prison's sprinkling system and the Thomaston Fire Department drenched the threatened area.

Escape Try

Robbins termed the incident "a well-organized escape attempt that just didn't click." He said the prisoners had broken into the commissary, bolted two rolling shelf ladders together and secured several white shirts to replace their prison jackets.

The warden said guards fired several shots into the air during the incident and kept the situation under control.

The rest of the prison's 443 inmates continued on their Sunday routines and the usual Sunday ball game was played, Robbins said.

Bid Of 'Oops' Ruled Lower Than One Club

NEW YORK (U)—The lowest bid in bridge history—"less than one club"—was made today in the National Bridge Tournament.

A dealer dropped his cards to the floor and said "oops." The next player thought he had heard "pass," and bid one club.

The dealer protested an out of turn bid. Said the referee: "Players must not make misleading remarks. 'Oops' will be treated as a bid of less than one club."

Dynamite—10 Tons Of It—Blows Pair To Smithereens

YAKIMA, Wash. (U)—Ten tons of dynamite, detonated apparently when a shot was fired into a storage shed, blew two Ft. Lewis Wash., soldiers to bits here Sunday.

The blast, six miles east of here, was felt widely over Yakima and one resident said the concussion was so severe it felt as though an automobile had hit his house.

The two, with a rifle and a .12 gauge shotgun between them, were apparently hunting rabbits in the area. The sarge shed caretaker, Charles McMann, had seen the Yakima pair shooting near the storage shed a short time previously.

Linda Not Orphan After All—

Sailor Who Rescued 'Doria' Victim, Can't Adopt Her

NEW YORK (U)—A Spanish-born sailor from the collision-damaged Stockholm found out Sunday there's no chance he can adopt the little girl he saved from the sea disaster.

But the sailor, Bernabe Polanco Garcia, had a happy hospital reunion with 14-year-old Linda Morgan, and rejoiced that Linda is not an orphan after all.

Her mother, he learned was also saved from the sinking Italian liner Andrea Doria and like Linda is making a "good recovery" at another hospital.

Father Alive

Linda's stepfather, New York Times Madrid correspondent Ca-

Garcia, a slight, dark-haired, handsome man of 36, found Linda lying badly hurt in the wreckage of the Stockholm's prow, where she was catapulted in the collision. He carried her to safety not long before that part of the bow plunged into the ocean.

Garcia thought the girl's parents must have perished, and he visited the hospital, telling attendants he wanted to see about adopting Linda. Told she could have no visitors, he went away.

Sunday he returned to the hospital and was welcomed by both Morgan and Linda with warm embraces.

Linda, who had been telling the nurses about the "very kind Spanish gentleman" who saved her, said she was feeling fine despite a fractured shoulder and two broken kneecaps.

TOT RAPED, FLUNG FROM ROOF TO DIE

... Crowd Angry

NEW YORK (U)—A 3-year-old girl was raped and flung from a rooftop to her death Sunday and a man accused of the crime was later nearly mobbed by an angry crowd of 2,000 people.

Five detectives with drawn guns managed to rescue the suspect, Diego Lugo, 24, from the milling mob that surrounded him a few minutes after police said they had a confession from him.

Lugo was released from psychiatric observation at Bellevue Hospital, about two weeks ago, police said.

The body of little Jeanette Ribot was found early Sunday in a tenement yard.

Police said she had been lifted through the window of her apartment, carried over several rooftops, raped, then flung from the roof of a six-story building.

Lugo, a laborer who came here from Puerto Rico about a year ago, is a brother of Herminio Lugo, who, police said, lives at the same address as Jeanette's mother, Mrs. Josephine Mirandi Ribot, on W. 90th St. Mrs. Ribot is estranged from her husband.

Police said Lugo was questioned when he appeared at the Ribot apartment, then taken to the police station.

Police questioned Lugo for nine hours and said he finally admitted he had committed the crime.

Meanwhile, crowds had been milling around all day at the spot where the little girl's body was found near her mother's home.

Lugo was taken, handcuffed to two detectives, to the scene of the crime in a police car.

Within seconds, more than 2,000 persons were jammed around the car, many demanding that the prisoner be turned over to them.

Finally, as the police car pulled away, hundreds ran after it, shaking fists and shrieking.

90 MPH Gale Rakes Britain, Sinks Boats

LONDON (AP)—A 90-mile-an-hour wind whipped the English Channel into a giant whirlpool today swallowing up scores of small boats. It roared inland toppling trees and unleashing floods and landslides.

At least 12 deaths were reported. Six persons were known drowned after their boats capsized in churning seas that forced suspension of ferries operating between Britain and France.

Sir Richard Lloyd Roberts, cousin of the late Prime Minister David Lloyd George, was killed by a falling tree in the yard of his home at Dunton Green, Kent. Sir Richard was former chief industrial adviser in the Ministry of Labor.

Four other persons were killed when trees toppled onto their cars while they were driving through the storm.

Sixteen of 22 yachts taking part in a cross-channel race from Le Havre, France, to Portsmouth, England, were missing late Sunday night. Naval spokesmen said no radio calls for help had been picked up.

The pass between Bethesda and Ogwen Lake in Wales was blocked by two landslides. Tons of boulders and soil rolled 1,500 feet down a mountainside.

A dozen automobiles were trapped between the landslides, but their occupants succeeded in fleeing. Officials said it would take weeks to clear the passage.

Garcia thought the girl's parents must have perished, and he visited the hospital, telling attendants he wanted to see about adopting Linda. Told she could have no visitors, he went away.

Sunday he returned to the hospital and was welcomed by both Morgan and Linda with warm embraces.

Linda, who had been telling the nurses about the "very kind Spanish gentleman" who saved her, said she was feeling fine despite a fractured shoulder and two broken kneecaps.

TOT RAPED, FLUNG FROM ROOF TO DIE

. . . Crowd Angry

NEW YORK (AP)—A 3-year-old girl was raped and flung from a rooftop to her death Sunday and a man accused of the crime was later nearly mobbed by an angry crowd of 2,000 people.

Five detectives with drawn guns managed to rescue the suspect, Diego Lugo, 24, from the milling mob that surrounded him a few minutes after police said they had a confession from him.

Lugo was released from psychiatric observation at Bellevue Hospital, about two weeks ago, police said.

The body of little Jeanette Ribot was found early Sunday in a tenement yard.

Police said she had been lifted through the window of her apartment, carried over several rooftops, raped, then flung from the roof of a six-story building.

Lugo, a laborer who came here from Puerto Rico about a year ago, is a brother of Herminio Lugo, who, police said, lives at the same address as Jeanette's mother, Mrs. Josephine Mirandi Ribot, on W. 90th St. Mrs. Ribot is estranged from her husband.

Police said Lugo was questioned when he appeared at the Ribot apartment, then taken to the police station.

Police questioned Lugo for nine hours and said he finally admitted he had committed the crime.

Meanwhile, crowds had been milling around all day at the spot where the little girl's body was found near her mother's home.

Lugo was taken, handcuffed to two detectives, to the scene of the crime in a police car.

Within seconds, more than 2,000 persons were jammed around the car, many demanding that the prisoner be turned over to them.

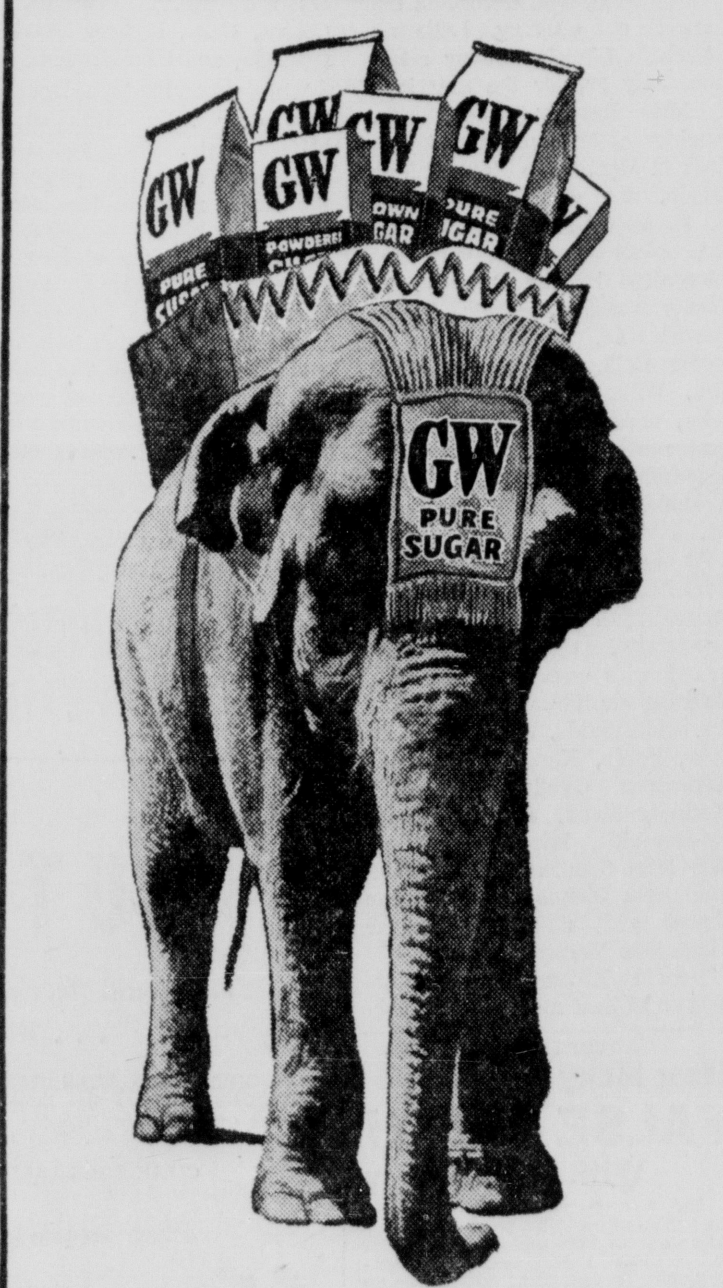

Finally, as the police car pulled away, hundreds ran after it, shaking fists and shrieking.

Attack On Nixon May Actually Have Helped Him

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Harold E. Stassen's attack appears to have elevated Vice President Nixon into position as the strongest candidate for top place on the Republican ticket if President Eisenhower should withdraw.

Republican leaders are supremely confident the President will not alter his decision to seek a second term unless there is a deterioration of his health.

Nevertheless, in the back of the minds of most politicians remains the possibility that the Republican National Convention three weeks hence might suddenly be confronted with the necessity of choosing another presidential nominee.

Health Could Change
Beyond that, of course, lies the possibility that a change for the worse in the President's health after the nominations have been made might force an alteration in the ticket before the November election.

In that case the Republican National Committee could call another convention if there were time, or it could name new presidential and vice presidential nominees.

There most certainly would be a move at the convention to draft Chief Justice Earl Warren for the presidential nomination if Eisenhower weren't available. But Warren's popularity with the men around Eisenhower wouldn't be matched within the GOP National Committee, if the committee were doing the choosing.

In 'It' Class
These possible developments fall exactly in the "it" class at this time. But if they should materialize the backwash from Stassen's proposal to dump Nixon from the GOP ticket has left the vice president perched high above other prospects for the top place.

The proposal of Stassen, Eisenhower's disarmament assistant, to replace Nixon with Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts brought a rush of Republicans of all shades of opinion into the Nixon vice presidential camp.

These included 180 GOP members of the House, Walter Williams, former head of the Independent Citizens for Eisenhower, and men like Sens. Clifford Case of New Jersey, Allott of Colorado and Thye of Minnesota who like to regard themselves as liberal Republicans.

Herter's agreement to place Nixon's name in nomination placed him among the Nixon supporters.

Ike 'Delighted'
Eisenhower has said he was "delighted" that Nixon wanted to run again but thus far hasn't publicly foreclosed any other candidate.

The Stassen move, however, had the result of showing a great many Republicans into Nixon's corner who otherwise might have kept silent.

Having publicly endorsed Nixon for the vice presidential post, these Republicans probably would find it difficult to say in the event of Eisenhower's withdrawal that they didn't regard Nixon as presidential timber.

Here?
Stassen's action seems to have clothed Nixon with at least the outward trappings of the kind of a hero that supporters of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio have been seeking.

The Taft wing is strong within the party organization despite the turnover in the GOP National Committee since Eisenhower's nomination in 1952. It has more individual strength and considerably more political know-how in the Senate than out-and-out Eisenhower followers.

Stamp Pictures Displayed
Mrs. H. G. Jensen of Hampton, Neb., displays two of her pictures made with used postage stamps. She has made more than 100 such pictures since starting her hobby in December, 1953. (Star Staff Photo.)

'Scissors, Paste And Patience' Hampton 'Stamp Painter' Tools

By DEL HARDING
Star Staff Writer
HAMPTON, Neb. — Scissors, paste and patience are the main tools Mrs. H. G. Jensen uses in her unique hobby of "painting" with postage stamps.

Mrs. Jensen has made more than 100 pictures of multi-colored flowers by cutting and pasting old stamps. She mounts her pictures on construction paper or canvass covered boards.

Most of her colorful and life-like paintings are made from American stamps but foreign issues are used in a few. Mrs. Jensen coats the finished paintings with clear nail polish.

Mrs. Jensen has never entered her pictures in a fair but says she may do so this fall at the Hampton County Fair. She has exhibited her work on an Omaha television station, at this year's Nebraska Wesleyan University's rural art display and at an Auburn hobby show.

Mrs. Jensen said she began her unusual pastime in December, 1953, after reading a newspaper clipping about a woman who painted with pictures. But she had to "learn from scratch" as no instructions were available.

She uses flowers in seed catalogues for models. Mrs. Jensen doesn't sell her pictures and says she gives most of them away. Many of them have a three-dimensional appearance.

In addition to her painstaking hobby she has served as Hampton's postmaster for more than 20 years. She plans to retire in mid-October and will devote more time to her hobby.

Price Daniel, determined champion of states rights and a 1952 supporter of Dwight D. Eisenhower, headed into an apparent Democratic runoff with Ralph Yarborough for Texas governor.

A tabulation Sunday night, the last to be made until Monday morning, showed Daniel with 578,946 votes from 254 of the state's 254 counties with 177 incomplete. Yarborough, a former state district judge, had 428,948.

W. Lee O'Daniel, former U. S. senator and Texas governor slipped deeper into third place with 324,145 votes.

State law requires a runoff for the top two candidates in a race when the leading one does not get a majority vote over the total of all his opponents.

Nomination on the Democratic ticket in Texas has been tantamount to election in the past.

While the hot governor's race held most voters attention, a bitter contest developed again for control of the state Democratic party leadership. In May conventions, Lyndon Johnson overwhelmingly won approval as leader of the 56-member state delegation to the Democratic National Convention and as a "favorite son" candidate for the Democratic nomination.

His control of the state party was challenged when the conservative party faction led by Gov. Shivers won unexpected triumphs in Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth. Observers said the test of power might not be settled until county conventions next Saturday and maybe not until the Sept. 11 state convention.

Former Lincolnite, NU Grad, Is Colorado Financial Wizard

Allen J. Lefferdink, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Lefferdink of 2124 Smith, is known in Colorado as one of the state's financial wizards. And not without reason.

Since moving to Boulder in 1946, with $200 in his pocket and $500 of borrowed capital, the former Lincolnite has gained control of 25 corporations and his multifaceted business ventures, principally in the Boulder area, gross $7 million a year.

His latest venture is the Boulder Acceptance Corporation which he and four other Boulder men organized recently.

The corporation, authorized to sell $18 million worth of stock within Colorado, is making plans to build an eight-story hotel in downtown Boulder, to be called the Bison Motor Hotel. The ultra-modern $3,000,000 hotel will feature a roof-top swimming pool, balconies for each room, and parking facilities under the building and in the basement. It will be located south of a $1.8 million nine-story Colorado Insurance Company building which Lefferdink is now constructing.

The insurance building, which will be completed this fall, will be Colorado's first skyscraper and will be capped by a heliport.

Many Other Plans
Other projected plans of the Boulder Acceptance Corporation are to build a chain of small loan companies throughout Colorado, to invest in the International Life Insurance Company of the Americas, (of which Lefferdink is board chairman) and purchase a commercial bank in Colorado.

Lefferdink and four other Boulderites purchased the Guardian Savings and Loan Association in Denver earlier this year for $650,000. The 23-year-old firm has assets totaling $10.3 million.

Some of Lefferdink's other business enterprises include real estate investments in Boulder, apartment house and filling station holdings and share in a Boulder radio station. He is believed to be the largest downtown Boulder property owner.

In addition to his collection of companies, called the Boulder ABC

"During the trail herd days when they drove them cows up to Kansas, the night riders circled around the herd and sang to them."

"What did they sing?"
"Oh, Sam Bass an' such truck. 'Git along litle dogies' maybe. Ol' Colonel Goodnight once trailed cattle over't Fort Sumner in the real old-time days was supposed to saved a herd that way."

"This herd was about to quit the flat, Indians or some such thing. The Colonel rode up an' hollers. 'Sing to 'em' boys.' So the riders give out with some yippee-ki-yoo-dies or something an' quieted 'em down."

STAN DELAPLANE'S POSTCARD

"But one day he met a man who was a whole lot badder And now he's dead and we ain't none the sadder."

I always thought that cowboy songs were a H o l l y wood export. I k k e t h e routin' tootin' two-gun man with a heart of gold and a head of sawdust.

It may be this is so. But the biggest buyer must be Texas.

I have never heard so much caterwauling on the car radio. Rolling down the great, straight Texas highways with the air weeping about, how the singers hankers to go back to old Laredo. Or how—

"They're look-look through her fee-ew possessions."

"For the na-um that she tried to caaaa-u-u-u."

The cowboy who tunes in this material may have a heart of gold. But he also has a tin ear, if you ask me.

The curious thing about folk music to me is the folks who like it best are the folks it is written about.

I have ridden through the Great Smokies with hill-billy tunes going that would drive a love-sick cat to drink.

'I'll Outpromise Every Other Candidate'

'Stew' Gives Arkansas Voters A Laugh A Minute

By SY RAMSEY
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—S. K. (Stew) Prosser, the Arkansas gubernatorial candidate who says he will "outpromise" the other four candidates, admits that some of his promises have gotten him into a "trap."

Prosser, a 30-year-old bachelor and ex-marine, says:

"I've promised 40 different ladies a job as head hostess at the governor's mansion."

Most of Humor
Prosser has been one of two "inactive" candidates in a 5-man race for the Democratic nomination, but he has provided most of the humor.

One of his recent ads stated: "I am against sin. I stand for shorter hours. I stand for shorter shorts. I stand for a pot in every kitchen."

"I stand for 'STEW' in every pot. I stand with my friends on segregation."

"I have some friends for segregation."

Not Always Joking
However, he didn't seem to be joking when he predicted that he would get 100,000 votes out of a total of about 350,000.

"If Gov. Orval Faubus and Jim Snoddy continue to go or TV, I might make the runoff primary," he said. Of Jim Johnson, the third major candidate, Prosser said: "He has fooled all the people he's going to fool."

One of Prosser's political cards has this statement:

"The candidate who will outpromise any other candidate for governor . . . and after elected will give you what I want you to have." Prosser describes himself as "the poor man's friend." He says that his friends have donated money for campaign expenses, which have amounted to "$1,000 to $1,500 so far."

Is it all a gag?
Asked if he were a stalking horse, Prosser replied: "What is a stalking horse?"

Prosser's expressed viewpoint is that none of the current candidates is qualified for governor. Prosser said he could be a capable governor "by keeping my nose out of the legislature and simply administering the laws."

Can't Do Much
"When a man runs for governor he gets blown up with the notion of what he can do for everyone," Prosser said. "Let's face it, there isn't much a governor can do."

Prosser's goal is more limited. He felt that if he could "accomplish just one solid thing"—a raise in teachers' salaries, for example —his administration would be a success.

Beneath Prosser's facade of humor is a deep antipathy to Johnson, the vocal pro-segregationist.

"Johnson doesn't only preach race hatred, he preaches class hatred," Prosser said.

The ex-marine is making his first entry into politics. He said he was a former employee of the Arkansas Public Service Commission, has sold insurance, raised livestock — and sold advertisements.

Mitchell Case Said Not Cause Of Resignation

Dr. Kristjan Kristjansson, University of Nebraska associate professor of agricultural economics, said his resignation at NU was not the result of his opinions concerning the removal of Dr. C. Clyde Mitchell as department head last spring.

Dr. Kristjansson, who left Sunday for his new post with the Canadian government, had said he felt Dr. Mitchell was a competent administrator of the agricultural economics department and an extremely competent scholar. But he said he would have accepted the Canadian position even if the Mitchell dispute had not occurred.

Dr. Kristjansson's new position will concern the determination of water policy in Canada.

The University Board of Regents at its meeting Saturday refused to reopen the Mitchell case. A resolution from the Buffalo County unit of the National Farmers' Organization asked that Mitchell be reinstated as department chairman. The Regents, without discussion, voted to place the resolution on file.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin said this means no further action will be taken on the resolution.

Mitchell had been criticized in past years for his views in favor of fixed supports for farm products. Dean W. V. Lambert of the University College of Agriculture said Mitchell's demotion was made to strengthen the department on file.

Mitchell is now studying in Rome on a Fulbright Fellowship. He is expected to return to his teaching duties at the University about Sept. 1.

BLAIR NATIVE, NU GRAD, GIVES ADVICE TO CITIES AND NATIONS

Donald Nemetz, a native of Blair and graduate of the University of Nebraska, is a Nebraskan who has really gone places—to Ethiopia, Central America and Formosa, among others.

Nemetz graduated from the University in the 1930s and received an M.A. degree there. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

He has recently been hired by Omaha's Charter Convention to furnish technical aid on city personnel matters.

He moved to California after graduation, before joining the Navy, in which he served during the Second World War.

Nemetz has been employed with the Public Administration Service, at Chicago, since the end of the war. The service is a non-profit, privately - endowed organization which makes its specialists available only to governmental units for objective investigations and advice.

Nemetz has been sent on assignments throughout the world in connection with his work. He was one of a group retained to investigate

Squirrel Crawls Into Transformer; Power Goes Off

OMAHA (AP)—A section of South Omaha was without power for a short time Sunday afternoon because a squirrel got into a transformer at 37th and O Streets.

Omaha Public Power District officials said an area between D and Y Streets from 30 to 44th was without power for 46 minutes, and power at the Cudahy Packing Co. was off for 24 minutes.

The squirrel was electrocuted.

Woman Appeals Damage Suit To Supreme Court

A damage suit for $16,957, following a school yard accident alleged to have occurred on Sept. 29, 1954, resulted in filing of a brief in the State Supreme Court.

The action was brought by a student, Marilyn Wilson, former Sidney High School pupil, who said she broke a leg when she stumbled on a ridge of dirt on the school yard. The claim was made against the North Central Gas Co.

The plaintiff, now Mrs. Marilyn Wilson Howter, contended the company was negligent in leaving the mound of dirt over the ditch.

In a trial last April, District Judge John H. Kuns directed a verdict in favor of the gas company and declined to grant a new trial.

N.Y. Report Shows Nebraska Building Down From 1955

Contract awards made for future construction in Nebraska during the first six months of 1956 reached $97,371,000, F. W. Dodge Corporation of New York, construction news and marketing specialists announced. The Dodge report said the total was 15 percent below the 1955 total.

The June total of $14,294,000 was 41 percent below June, 1955.

Individual categories for the first six months, listed by Dodge, compared with the 1955 period, showed total building at $71,976,000, down 13 percent, and heavy engineering at $25,395,000, down 20 percent.

Individual June awards, compared with June, 1955, showed total building at $11,023,000, down 22 percent, and heavy engineering at $3,271,000, down "substantially."

Iowa-Nebraska Air Guardsmen Begin Training

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—Eighteen hundred men of the 132nd Iowa-Nebraska fighter interceptor wing of the Air National Guard began two weeks training Sunday.

Training flights began over the Splitrock Gunnery Range 40 miles west of Casper.

The Guardsmen arrived Saturday aboard two special trains that originated in Lincoln, Neb., Des Moines and Sioux City, Iowa. The outfit is commanded by Maj. Gen. Guy N. Henninger, adjutant general of Nebraska.

A highlight of the training period will be Governors' Day Saturday. Governors and their staffs from both states are expected to participate.

State Oil, Gas Group Picks Committee Heads

The Nebraska Oil & Gas Association has announced the appointments of four committee chairmen.

W. F. Rogers of Scottsbluff, chairman of the association, said appointments included: James D. Conway of Hastings, legal committee; Wesley M. Felt of Sidney, public lands; Glen Wallace of Hastings, membership and collections; and S. E. Torgeson of Kimball, legislative.

Rogers said that further appointments would be made within the next 10 days to head the taxation, transportation, press relations and percentage depletion provision committees.

BLAIR NATIVE, NU GRAD, GIVES ADVICE TO CITIES AND NATIONS

Ohio prison conditions. Later, he worked in Provo, Utah, and Pasco, Wash., advising on revamping of city governments. Other assignments have taken him to Greenwich Village, the University of Colorado at Boulder and various other cities.

Included among his foreign assignments was a six month study at San Salvador and a two-year stay in Formosa where he headed a commission which advised Chiang on proper disbursement of U. S. funds being sent there.

In Ethiopia, Nemetz taught personnel administration to the Ethiopian guard, banks and municipalities during a two-year assignment. Nemetz said that aging Ethiopian monarch Haile Selassie is trying to put his government on a sound basis and is using youth to a great extent to achieve this end.

In Omaha, Nemetz gave his views on changes needed in city government civil service system at the Charter Convention.

Nemetz is married and has one son.

WISHING WELL

By William J. Miller

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the puzzle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

BAERING DOWN ON THE NEWS

By Arthur 'Bugs' Boer

Our definition of an independent is a fellow whose wife doesn't know how much salary he gets.

He makes the railroad conductor guess which way he's going, buys sex one at a time and will not tell the dentist which tooth hurts.

Bugs Boer

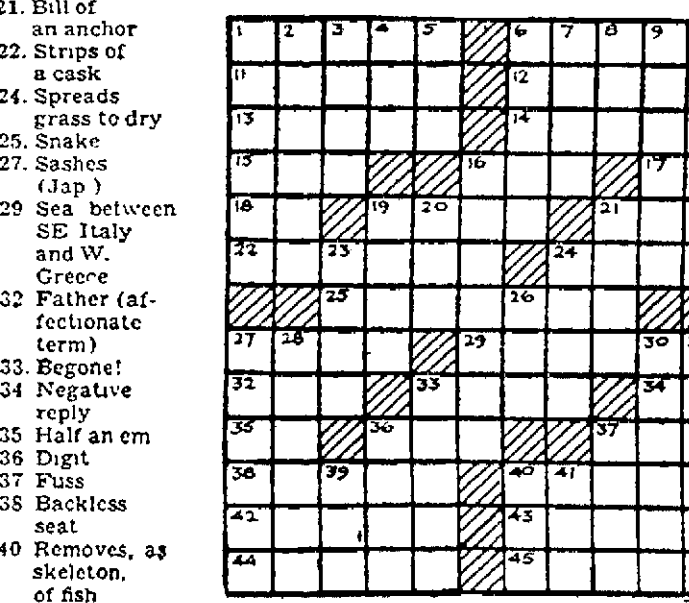

We are voting for any independent who will put the posts back in movie houses where a fellow can get some sleep.

There are no reliable political mavericks tagged for Chicago and San Francisco. Of course Estes Kefauver operates looser than mule harness on a fence post. Estes has been in many a candy pull without ever snapping the big bon-bon.

No independent can slack against the organized politicians who are squandering two pounds of bait for one pound of trout. Who are chain-smoking on propositions

Our definition of an independent is a fellow whose wife doesn't know how much salary he gets.

He makes the railroad conductor guess which way he's going, buys one at a time and will not tell the dentist which tooth hurts.

We are voting for any independent who will put the posts back in movie houses where a fellow can get some sleep.

But if he can reach the third or fourth ballot he is in a strategic spot to swing a compromise. He can release his instructed proxy or he can leave quietly.

This Subscription Had Little Profit

FALLS CITY, Neb. (AP)—Russell Pollard, superintendent of the municipal water and light department here, got a start when the telephone operator told him that New York was calling.

The man at the other end of the line wanted Pollard to subscribe to a magazine!

"You're the only superintendent of a municipal water and light plant in Nebraska who doesn't subscribe to our magazine," the salesman informed him in an injured tone of voice, as if the Falls Cityan had delivered a major insult.

Pollard ordered the magazine, which cost $6. The telephone call cost the salesman $3.50.
